Silly Democracy
Bryan a Real Man
11 Religions Will Pray
How Rich Is America?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

The railroads are not running. Everybody is profiteering, from the man who sells a necktie to the man who sells a locomotive. War exists in a dozen places in Europe and threatens to break out all over the world.

The national Democratic party is selecting a candidate for the presidency, a man to manage the United States, and through the United States influence the world. And all the talk is of "wet" or "dry."

One individual has something of the characteristics of a real man. His name is W. J. Bryan.

There are things that he does not know, and some that he knows are not so.

The evidence of a thousand centuries means nothing to him compared with something that he saw once in Nebraska. The problem of experimenting arbitrarily with a hundred million human beings is to him no problem at all. But Mr. Bryan knows at least what he wants and how to let others know what he wants.

At the Democratic convention they have what they didn't have in Chicago, a man able to talk to ten or twenty thousand people and able to make them realize that somebody is talking to them.

Roosevelt first, then Hiram Johnson allowed a convention of well-ruled, corrupt delegates to walk over their bodies with no real protest. They cannot do that with Bryan.

If you could lend Bryan's ability as leader, talker, man of absolutely convincing sincerity to somebody with information and an open mind concerning events that happened before the Philadelphia Centennial, it would make a fine combination.

A good slogan for Harding or the Democrat to take the place of the old "full dinner pail," would be, "I'll bring back the old prosperity and security and retain the new kind of wages."

In religion, at least, the Democrats will cover the field at most. The convention seeking wisdom and guidance will be prayed for by the following reverend gentlemen:

One Catholic, the vicar-general of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco.

One Methodist, Bishop Leonard.

One Protestant Episcopalian, also a bishop, and Rabbi Martin A. Meyer, representing the religion from which the Christians borrowed theirs.

There will also be a Presbyterian, a Congregationalist, a Baptist, a Lutheran and Peter V. Ross, Christian Scientist.

That is what you may call thorough, although Mr. Taft's church, the Unitarian, is not represented. Perhaps the rabbi can represent that as well as anything else. The Christian Scientist will do well if he keeps "error" from "making an avenue of the Palms called democracy."

Lord Leverhulme is one of the ablest, best-informed business men in the world. What he says about England's finances, her ability to pay her debts and about her immediate danger, interests the whole world.

He denounces the British for worrying about their little national war debt. England now owes about thirty-two thousand million dollars, which is nothing for so vast an empire.

At the beginning of the last century, when the Napoleonic wars ended, England's debt was four thousand millions. Her debt is now only eight times as big as it was when Napoleon went to St. Helena. And her wealth is now a thousand times as great as it was then.

That gigantic increase in wealth is due to modern science, to the fact that a manufacturing country like England, where one man plus one machine can produce a thousand times as much as it could with man power only, when Napoleon was vainly trying to cross the channel.

The danger to England, says Leverhulme (what he says applies to this country), is unscientific taxation that strangles industry, discourages enterprise, making it not worth while for the ablest men to do their best work or take any risks.

Leverhulme warns his countrymen that they will not "evolution" com "swift as lightning" if, frightened by a war debt that amounts to nothing, they strangle England with unscientific taxation and suddenly precipitate lack of employment on a vast scale.

If England is a thousand times as rich as she was when she ended her trouble with Napoleon, how many times richer is America than when she settled her difficulty with England, before Napoleon's star rose. This country is not a thousand or ten thousand, but a million times as rich as in 1774.

Our national debt amounts to nothing, yet this country is borrowing money as though bankrupt and allows national bonds to be quoted as cats and dogs.

UNREST OF POLICE IS DENIED BY CURTIS

Commissioner Calls Story of Demand for Higher Pay Groundless 'Propaganda'

Police Commissioner Edwin Upton Curtis emphatically denied to the American today that dissatisfaction over wages existed in the newly organized Police Department.

He categorically denied rumors printed and unprinted that a committee of the new patrolman had demanded a salary increase from him; that any increases had been promised or hinted by him and that resignations were more numerous than usual.

The commissioner deprecated the spreading of such rumors about the city as harmful to the morale of the force and unjust to the men. He said he recognized the source of the rumors and characterized them as the same sort of propaganda as had been circulated from time to time since the police strike.

NO COMMITTEE CALL.

"There is not a word of truth in the stories printed in two morning newspapers," said the commissioner to the American. "I never saw any committee from the men seeking an increase of salary for the simple reason no such committee ever existed.

"So far as the superior officers of the police department are concerned, they know that their present salaries are all that can be expected.

"The rank and file of the men, according to the reports I receive, are contented with their present salaries.

"There may be officers here and there who have said to someone that they could use more money than they are being paid under the present scale. So could about everybody in positions outside the police department.

"But any stories of wholesale dissatisfaction or wholesale resignations is the merest propaganda. Some of the force have resigned to be sure. That is not at all strange in a department which took on more than 1,700 young men recently returned from the war with their minds uncertain as to just what vocation they wished to choose for a life work.

MANY HIGH-CLASS MEN.

"Many of our men are high class men—men wanted in outside business—who can command larger salaries than the police department pays its rank and file. Some of them are college graduates. Some of them have resigned because of better money offers. Some others we have let go for various reasons.

"Ask an ylarge employer of men what percentage of changes he has in his help and you will find that the percentage of changes in the police department are no more and no less than in other lines of employment."

Superintendent Crowley has been ordered to the various station houses to talk frankly to the men," said the Commissioner. "He has told them nothing that the public might not know except that the police have dealt with matters purely pertaining to the department and naturally designed to maintain discipline."

AUTO CATCHES RUNAWAY HORSE, A WAR 'VETERAN'

Daniel J. Kelley, a produce dealer in East Somerville, was hitching his horse to a wagon today when "Dobbin" became frightened and bolted. Patrolman John J. Kilbourby commandeered a passing automobile and gave chase. They managed to corner the animal on Kirkland street. Curiously enough, the horse had done his bit overseas and it was thought that he was "fright-proof."

WILLIAM H. PENDLETON.

New York, June 28.—William H. Pendleton, wealthy yachtsman and onetime associate of the late Joseph Bowne Elwell in the conduct of a racing stable, admitted today that he interpreted references to a former business associate of the slain man as the chief suspect as being directed at himself.

For several days, practically all of the vague information relating to the case that has come from the office of District Attorney Swann has had to do with the so-called former business associate.

Previously, the information given out by the District Attorney has cast suspicion on friends of Elwell, whose

150 WOMEN LOSE NAVY YARD JOBS

Large Reductions Expected as Congress Failed to Provide Money for Wages

Congress having failed to provide funds to continue their services, 150 women clerks, formerly yeomen (F), at the Charlestown Navy Yard will be laid off Thursday, it was announced today.

Navy yards all along the Atlantic seaboard are being forced to lay off clerks. About 400 girls at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant in South Brooklyn will probably be laid off, as well as some 10 per cent. of the men at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. It is feared that important work on several vessels will be hampered by the Brooklyn layoff.

Word from Portsmouth is to the effect that a general cut will take place there.

GIRL RUN DOWN BY AUTO, DRIVER IS ARRESTED

Miss Alice Broe, of No. 32 Capital street, Watertown, was seriously injured by an automobile today as she alighted from an Allston Elevated car in Harvard square, Brookline. Miss Broe is unconscious at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Michael Chappelle of Newton, driver of the machine, was arrested, after he had taken the victim to the hospital. He was released in $100, pending a hearing July 12. Miss Broe was on her way to work in a Brookline florist's shop.

BAY STATE PILOTS PASS PHYSICAL FLYING TESTS

The Massachusetts quota of reserve pilots for the aviation section of the army passed better physical examinations than those from other sections, according to Captain John B. Powers, M. C., of Mineola, L. I. "The men in this State have made a good psyhical showing," said the captain. "I am gratified at the manner in which they responded to the tests."

TENANTS FIGHTING U.S. DEAL

To Hold Mass Meeting to Protest Against Government Sale of Houses

More than 250 families of employes of the Fore River Shipyards, who are faced with possible eviction from their homes at Quincy Point, will tonight hold a mass meeting in City square, Quincy, to protest against the decision of the United States Housing Corporation to sell the houses at public sale next Saturday.

The tenants declare that the sale of the houses will no doubt force them to the streets. They say that they have not been given a fair opportunity to buy the homes, and charge the Housing Corporation with holding out for prices in excess of the cost.

The shipworkers openly charge the government commission with being the tool of real estate operators who have advised the corporation to dispose of the homes at an inflated valuation and thus help to maintain high prices and high rents.

Through Congressman Richard Olney the occupants of the government-owned houses have requested a postponement of the sale and an opportunity to lease the homes for another year. This request, it is said, has been denied.

The homes which are to be sold were built by the government during the war to house the workers of the big shipbuilding plant. They are modern in every respect and are rented at the average rental of $6 a month per room.

Recently the Housing Corporation decided to dispose of the whole property.

2 LUMBER CONCERNS BURNED

Strangman Company's Plant Destroyed; Several Employes Have Narrow Escape

Fire apparatus was called from Watertown, Waltham and Newton today to fight a fire which destroyed the Strangman Lumber Company mills at Newton Corner, swept across Craft street to the Basley Lumber Company yard, and spread to three nearby dwelling houses.

The damage was estimated at $200,000, most sustained by the Strangman Company, which had recently put in new stock and machinery.

Twenty workmen in the Strangman mills were driven hurriedly to the yard by the blaze, leaving street clothes, money and other personal belongings behind. Two, Chester Capuni and Gus Jepson, were trapped on the second floor and were removed on a plank hurriedly put up to the window by A. W. Maulland and Tony Calloti, fellow employes.

The fire started from a hot box in the sawdust blower in the planing room of the Strangman mills. Within a few minutes the frame and corru-

McAdoo Looks Like Nominee, Says Walsh

By DAVID I. WALSH,
United States Senator from Massachusetts.

San Francisco, June 28.—Never before has so much uncertainty surrounded the proceedings of a Democratic convention as that which exists on the eve of this convention.

Strange to say, there is not as much interest here in San Francisco as to the party nominee as there is in what shall be the party's declaration of principles. To be sure, on the lips of everyone is the query, "Who'll be the nominee?" The answer most persistently met is, "Mr. McAdoo." No one seems to know just how or why he will be finally chosen to lead the party in the coming election, yet it seems to be in the atmosphere that the nomination will finally go to him.

Governor Cox of Ohio has an enthusiastic following and his influence has steadily increased, especially since Mr. McAdoo's letter of withdrawal.

50 Tons of Sugar Lacks Owner

Philadelphia, Pa., June 28.—Another of those "eighth wonders" of the world has been uncovered this time by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is holding a shipment billed as 100,000 pounds of sugar for which it can find neither claimant nor shipper.

The sugar arrived in Philadelphia on June 4, and a postcard was sent to the consignee notifying him to come get it. The card was returned undelivered.

Further investigation disclosed the consignee is unknown and can't be found. Notices to this effect were sent to the shippers at Nogales, Ariz., and again the letters have been returned unclaimed. The railroad notified the Department of Justice.

BUY OPTIONS ON GERMAN MARKS

Good for Six Months

The fact that German money is selling at about one-tenth of its normal value should convince even the most skeptical that purchases now offer a wonderful opportunity for large profits. Exchange experts predict a sharp advance within the next few months.

100,000 Marks Can Be Controlled for $400.00

Buying options limits your risk, as the original cost constitutes your entire liability. The cost of an option involves the use of about one-sixth as much money as would be required to buy marks outright. Should the marks held on option advance to only one-half normal value the return on $50 would be over $760.00.

Send remittance, stating number of marks you wish to option at above rates. We urge prompt action as exchange fluctuates rapidly.

THE REMEDY

Very few banks are paying interest monthly to savings depositors. All should do it. The law permits but does not require it to be done; and reactionary bankers are taking advantage of the loophole.

Our experience with the Legislature leads us to believe that the remedy does not lie in the Legislature—it lies with the people themselves.

The remedy is for the people to withdraw their deposits from banks that will not pay interest monthly and deposit them in banks that do pay interest monthly.

Now is the time to give the medicine—before deposits are again tied up for three or six months.

Ask your banker what he proposes doing about the monthly payment of interest and then govern yourself accordingly. Accept no excuses.

CUMMINGS SAYS FOES MADE WILSON ILL BY "CRUCIFIXION"

DECLARES LEAGUE PARAMOUNT CONVENTION ISSUE

"Let us stand with the forces of civilization and Christianity. The choice is plain. It is between the Democratic party's support of the League of Nations with its program of peace, disarmament and world fraternity, and the Republican party's platform of republicanism, practicalism, militarism and world chaos."

President Wilson's illness resulted from "crucifixion" at the hands of the "political adventurers," Cummings charged. He had been "physically assaulted just as surely as were clubbed and bleeding Lincoln, for, it is but a difference of degree between fatuous and pernicious assault."

LEAGUE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

Cummings devoted more than half of his keynote address to the League of Nations, and left no doubt that it is the issue of the Democratic party and those who support him that this question be made the outstanding issue of the 1920 campaign by the Democratic party.

Denial that President Aspinall reservations to the Peace Treaty was made by Cummings when he declared that "it is not reservations that the President stands against, but nullification." He declared that the President has consistently announced his "willingness to accept any and all reservations that are consistent with America's honor and true interests."

"The trouble with the Treaty of Peace is that it was negotiated by a Democratic President," said Cummings.

"No blacker crime against civilization has ever soiled the pages of history," asserted Cummings in placing full responsibility for the defeat of the treaty upon the Republican members of the Senate.

"The last chapter was written at Chicago," Cummings continued. "The Republican platform not only repudiates the League of Nations but practices nullification, all of the Republican Senators who participated in the fight."

OLD GUARD "SOLD OUT."

"It would be idle to inquire by what political legerdemain this monstrous and yet ominous declaration was prepared. It is enough to know that the 'Old Guard' sold the honor of America for the privilege of committing a reactionary platform.

"Here the record of our party is clearly understood," Cummings continued. "We stand squarely on the high ideals of peace as those for which we was fought. We support, without flinching, the only feasible plan for peace and justice.

"Others may break faith; the Senate of the United States may break faith, the Republican party may break faith, but neither President Wilson nor the Democratic party will break faith.

"We shall rebuild again the shocked forces of civilization and America shall take its once more the leadership of the world."

Attacking the Republican party, Cummings declared that "the leaders who have manipulated the party machinery for more than a generation are still in control of the party and that the sentiments of socialistic opportunists are "sheltered the fact that the Hearst and Chicago was not a coincidence, but a deliberate plan to control the party, did not get the prize. The publicity given to the proceedings of that convention was the initial purpose. Procedure than was the intent. Control of the machinery of the Democratic party as the sole custodian of the name of the party."

CHALLENGES CRITICS.

Outlining the achievements of the Democratic administration since 1913, Cummings asserted, "no stained spot upon the escutcheon of our country, no more effective, constructive and beneficial legislation than the Republican legislation since the Democratic party came into power."

"We challenge the critics of the administration to point out, within the limits of human possibility, the way in which we could have prevented or with less loss of life," Cummings said, declaring that it was the Democratic party that "delivered the territory of the Philippines from the yoke of Spain and gave to them a government of their own."

Deserting the peace-war investigations by Congress, Cummings declared that "the danger of worse does not point to one single Democratic American, of any outstanding political significance who is moving in the direction of the profiteering or Preston Newberry of Michigan."

MICHIGAN'S "TAINTED" VOTE.

"The very power of the Republican party to conduct a partisan campaign of this war, to criticize the President, to control the organization of the Senate and to avoid the payment of world peace, rests upon a bare majority of one, secured through the tainted Senatorial vote from Michigan.

"When criticism is made of the expense of the war, let us not forget what we bought with it the freedom and the safety of the civilization of the world," Cummings said.

Cummings failed to touch upon many of the issues now in controversy. He referred only indirectly to some of the great issues in overcoming the Republican platform when he said, "confident in the hope for Ireland, in word of mercy for Armenia, and it concedes a need for Mexico." The question of the party's attitude towards labor, government ownership of the railroads, industrial unrest and other important issues were untouched upon by Cummings.

Boston Warmest Spot In New England

High temperatures tempered by moderate, cooling winds predominated in New England today.

It was 86 in Boston at 1 o'clock.

Today's brand of weather will be served up again tomorrow, according to the Forecaster.

Thermometer registered only 65 degrees in Boston a year ago today. The hottest June 28 in recent history was in 1901, when the mercury went crazy with the heat and sought top of mark.

Boston was the warmest spot in New England, Northfield, Vt., and Eastport, Me., were having their daily chat for low temperature honors, with 58 degrees reported in both places at noon.

PACKERS FACE BIG LOSSES

Beef Boycott by Boston Housewives Expected to Force Down Price

Boston beef wholesalers face big financial losses as a result of the beef boycott began Saturday by Boston housewives.

That the admission of sales agents of the "Big Four" packers who today declared that the boycott was the most effective ever experienced in this city.

The sales agent of one of the principal packing firms in the country, with a huge Boston trade, said his concern had not sold a pound of beef since early Saturday morning.

It was conceded that the collective head of the packers would force a lowering in the wholesale price of at least 5 cents a pound.

Meantime, forty-six carloads of meats brought to Saturday, as well as hundreds of carloads left over from the heavy shipments of last week, were held in storage in the face of a market without a demand. Retailers in Boston markets today were standing by the housewives in their refusal to buy beef, and were recommending poultry and lamb as substitutes until prices come down.

The boycott on Saturday was a spontaneous protest by indignant marketers confronted by the highest prices in history.

Coincident with announcement of these record prices, it was learned that unusually heavy shipments of beef were being received in Boston.

gated four buildings comprising the mill factory were Hyder boxes.

Miss Mary Cannon, bookkeeper of the mill, was forced to flee, losing her watch in her desk. Walter Mc-Vaughan of Dorchester fled in jeans, having donned a new suit of street clothes.

The blaze leaped Craft street before the arrival of the first detachment of firemen, and soon was on the roof of the Rosley Company. It was supposed, but burst out intermittently during the early afternoon, causing much damage.

Tongues of flames blown by the wind in the direction of Lincoln road set fire to the two-family apartment house occupied by James Dobbins and James McGrath, and the single house of P. J. O'Toole. At No. 24 Craft street the two-story house occupied by Charles Maguire and Michael O'Rourke caught fire. All the dwellings were saved, without much damage.

The strawman factory was a complete loss, including intricate wood-working machinery recently installed, and a large stock ready for consignment.

Miss Bernice Whiting of No. 24 Francis street, Newton, daughter of a captain in the Newton Fire Department, fainted when she thought she saw her father buried under a mass of falling debris.

London, June 28.—Serious and widespread fighting in Italy between anarchists and soldiers, in which six persons were killed and many wounded, was reported from Rome today in the following news agency dispatch:

"Anarchists attacked a train at Borgaccio, near Ancona, killing five passengers and wounding three. A lieutenant was killed and three military policemen were wounded when another train was attacked. The anarchists are concentrating.

"One hundred and ninety-three arrests were made at Ancona."

WELL DRESSED INFANT FOUND ABANDONED

Brookline police are endeavoring to establish the identity of a chubby four-month-old baby boy, found abandoned on the grass early today, at the Brookline Parkway, near the Roxbury line. The infant was discovered by children at play. It was dressed in white clothing of good material, but there was not the slightest mark for identification. The child was turned over to the State Board of Charities.

and after placing a value on the individual residences offered the tenants the first opportunity to buy them. The appraisal made was unfair, the tenants claim. They say it was based on the present abnormal prices without any respect to the building cost.

The terms of sale provide that the buyer must pay 10 per cent. of the total valuation down and then must pay eight-tenths of 1 per cent. of the sum each month as a purchasing instalment. Second mortgages are not allowed and with the interest, taxes and other overhead costs the monthly burden to be borne by the prospective buyer is too heavy for the average workingman's family, they say.

SEE HIGHER RENT.

The shipworkers further believe that the sale will offer an opportunity for speculation by real estate men who will obtain possession of the houses and boost the rent.

Homes are at a premium in Quincy and if the Housing Corporation goes through with the sale, many of the tenants may be forced to give up their work at the shipyards and leave the city.

According to officials of the Fore River Yard the need for workers is greater today than it was during the war. The company is working on a contract and largely because of a shortage of homes in Quincy and vicinity is forced to work shorthanded.

One of the occupants of the Quincy Point homes, in discussing the situation today, said: "The government should extend our present leases or should let us buy our homes at a fair price and on moderate terms.

"The government valuation is even far in excess of the large tax valuation set on the property by the Quincy assessors. The homes are being offered for sale at prices of $1,500 to $2,000 more than they cost to build."

All our working partners have had an opportunity to discuss the different items on this chart at meetings held expresely for this purpose, and new members in the store receive, as part of their training for store work, a talk on this chart.

Every member of this organization therefore is not only able but willing to answer all queries on this subject.

WOMAN HID ELWELL CASE CLEWS, VIEW OF ARTHUR B. REEVE

HOLDS TO SUICIDE THEORY

Novelist Sees Solution of Mystery in Discovery of Revolver and Keys

By ARTHUR B. REEVE,
Famous Novelist, Author of the "Craig Kennedy" Detective Stories.

Two weeks after Elwell, the whist king, was discovered dying in his reception room, we know no more about what actually happened in his beautiful reception room than we did two hours afterward.

The case is just as inexplicable as ever, and in that respect it is an ideal mystery, with an appeal to me that no other case in recent years has had.

I have followed every theory advanced in the matter most candidly speculative, from the spicide hypothesis to the remote suggestion that the housekeeper knows more about the tragedy than she has admitted to the authorities. Surely one ought to write a good story on the Elwell case, for no one is hampered by facts, and facts are troublesome things that knock down the prettiest theories.

And first of all, I want to hark back to the explanation that was dismissed almost at the start.

I know nothing that yet militates against the suicide theory.

There there does not yet appear to have been any motive for suicides. But suicides often occur over strange and hidden motives.

WHAT BECOME OF REVOLVER.

When Elwell was discovered dying he had been reading a letter from a trainer in Kentucky. Far from there being any bad news in it, the news was rather encouraging. In the mail was also an unopened letter from a girl thanking him for some flowers.

Under any theory the crucial point is naturally the gun. What became of it? That is probably why the suicide theory has been rejected. But the missing gun can be made to point very strongly toward that theory. What would be more likely than that the housekeeper might have removed the weapon to cover Elwell's own dead, just as she says she removed the lingerie of a certain young woman to cover up her association with Elwell?

Two weeks ago I propounded the theory that the murder was done by a woman. I still hold to the same idea. But if murder was done I think now I would change the order of the pronouns of motives. I would be inclined to submerge the woman motive and bring up into first place the gambling motive—not gambling by cards, but gambling connected with the race horses.

PICTURE OF FATAL NIGHT.

Elwell, we know, returned home after having been at the Midnight Frolic in evening clothes. But the negro chauffeur Edgar Allen Poe asserts that he drove a man in a business suit to Elwell's home at 2:30 a. m. Who was this man? Was it Elwell? Might it not have been Elwell's fatal visitor? Would a nighthawk cabby make a mistake in the attire of his fare? How certain can he be in his identification of the passenger?

Let me picture in brief a story.

Let us suppose that it was a woman who had the third set of keys which were found on the mantelpiece, and which is by far the most interesting, yet receive clue in this perplexing enigma.

The idea was that the woman was to precede him to the Elwell house of Mystery while he, perhaps, dropped in somewhere for an hour or two.

Upon Elwell's return to his house he finds a visitor—an old race track friend who has come to put over a scheme deal with him, or to force or argue him into some thing. Something that something is not clear yet, but let us pass that over. Or the visitor may have come later.

SANGFROID ANGERS VISITOR.

When Elwell was discovered dying he had removed his tuxedo and his false [illegible]. Elwell would never have done such a thing unless in the presence of one of his intimates.

Remember, too, there is his inamorata upstairs. Certainly a strange situation, not one that Elwell, with his warped aspect on life, probably revelled in.

So the night passes away. Elwell cold, calm and collected, his visitor eager and heated.

"Morning, comes.

Elwell has not retired.

The bell rings.

It is the postman.

To show his absolute unconcern Elwell answers the bell, picks up his mail in the vestibule and nonchalantly seats himself again, toying with the mail and opening the letter from a girl thanking him for some flowers.

Could anything be better calculated than this sangfroid to anger the visitor to the firing point?

WOMAN FORGETS KEY.

Then the shot from the racetrack gambler.

And the drama of the lingerie woman. The woman leaves her bed—perhaps not before the murderer has let himself out of the house, carrying the gun but leaving behind the shell, of which little has been said.

She is in a quandry.

Shall she take her keys? No, she dresses quickly and ices its them on the mantel, letting herself out in the wake of the murderer. Elwell had left the price—and the "[illegible]" have fled into the close-mouthed solitude of their fraternity.

Again the woman housekeeper—

Again she covers up this young woman by removing the lingerie—perhaps under instructions.

So the drama of Elwell's death was played in a way that, while there is a doubt will suggest a score of "movie" plots to any one who, like myself, has been bitten by the cinema bug.

Why have we not learned more? I think I have hinted at it. This was a close-mouthed fraternity to which Elwell belonged.

Get the race track men who were his intimates to talk. Break down the reserve of women of the half world which now overlaps into the upper world, and we will learn the truth of what happened to Elwell, on that fateful night.

Once trace the gun and learn the secret of the third bunch of keys and the Elwell mystery will go down in the annals of crime as one of the most celebrated cases solved.

FEAR TEACHER DROWNED IN LAKE MICHIGAN

Chicago, June 28.—In another strange story of mystery surrounding Lake Michigan, all hope faded today that Major Joseph H. Jones, professor of zoology at Evanston High School, expert swimmer and international rifle shot, missing since last Friday night, would ever return to his home. The lake tossed his canoe on the beach, the professor's trousers, watch and wallet were found therein.

HOLD FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PROF. SCHOFIELD

Peterboro, N. H., June 28.—Funeral services were held here for Professor William H. Schofield, formerly instructor in comparative literature at Harvard University, who died at his summer home in this town. The Rev. Louis H. Clark, rector of All Saints' Church, officiated, assisted by Bishop Edward Parker of the New Hampshire diocese, and the Rev. P. O. Powell of Boston.

ICEMAN CHARGED WITH ATTACK ON LITTLE GIRL

Caleb A. Prancey, forty-six years old, of Monument avenue, Charlestown, a helper on an ice wagon, was arrested today charged with attacking nine-year-old Phyllis Cooper, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cooper of 81 Andrew road, Orient Heights. He pleaded not guilty in East Boston court and was held in $1,000 for trial next Saturday.

CAPTURE "AUDIENCE," BUT GAMBLERS ESCAPE

The gamblers had nimbler legs than the policemen, but John J. Giardano, eighteen years old, of King street, Dorchester, who was only captured, did not get away. He was fined $5 in the Dorchester court today for being present at a gambling game.

Boston Druggist Hurt

Milford, June 28.—Edward Dolan, a druggist of Warren avenue, Boston, was slightly injured when his automobile overturned on the highway near East Holliston. The car was towed to a garage here.

POLICE TRAIL FIRE SUSPECT

Believe One Man Set Fires at Hotels Hollis, Brewster and American House

Police efforts are today centred in running to earth the demented firebug who, on three successive mornings, has set fire to three Boston hotels, imperilling hundreds of lives and causing thousands of dollars' damage—in the last instance forcing 500 guests of the American House on Hanover street to fleet to the street scantily clad and damaging the hostelry to the extent of $10,000.

The first fire occurred at the Hotel Hollis whose flames damaged the building and contents to the extent of $500. The next morning the Hotel Brewster was set and damage of $5,000 resulted. Both fires occurred between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning and were confined largely to isolated sections of the hotels. In all instances the firebug chose the period when the night watchmen were in other parts of the hostelries on their rounds.

The blaze at the American House yesterday morning was the most serious and confined to the fourth floor rooms on the third and fourth floors. The ceiling of the third floor was completely burned through.

When they landed on the roof the three young men heard a woman on the third floor beating her bell. They climbed on top of the skylight and directed her to escape. The woman, it was learned, was a bride.

When the firemen arrived they hurried to the third floor, where they were met by a sheet of flame and smoke which hampered them in reaching the fire. The firemen grabbed the house hose line in a wall rack and with hand extinguishers started to battle with the blaze until the big lines of the department were brought in. The fire had gained such headway that it had burned through the ceiling on the third floor to the hallway above and had destroyed the contents of six rooms on the third floor and two on the floor above.

A moment later, Sokolowsky dashed into the hall and cried, "Get the police! Get a doctor!"

Then he sidestepped through the hall of his apartment to the front porch, still shouting for aid, and tried to reach Grace Hospital, only a short block away, but collapsed on the porch.

The wife followed him into the hall, then hurriedly returned to their apartment and aroused her little daughter. Taking her up to the lobby apartment, she said to Mrs. Kelley, "Please take care of her for a little while?" and walked away without waiting for an answer.

LEFT AS POLICE ARRIVED.

She left by the rear door as the police arrived by the front door. A taxi in the back yard on the extra part of Bridgeport. She was excited during the trip, according to the driver, and told him to drive to greater speed. Sokolowsky was dead when physicians arrived.

But Sokolowsky opened the letter from the New York woman when she noticed the strange handwriting, according to Mrs. Kelley, and made no secret of her jealousy when she had read it.

When the labor leader did not return from the Waterbury meeting at the hour he had promised she became worried, and proclaimed that he had run off with the other woman. The arrival of the police in the pajamas as soon as Sokolowsky reached home, according to the Kelleys.

GIRL KIDNAPED BY AUTOIST

Connecticut Police Hunt Young Man and 15-Year-Old School Pupil

Sterling, Conn., June 28.—State and local police throughout Connecticut were today engaged in the hunt for fifteen-year-old Edith Hawes, who it is believed was abducted by a young man driving an expensive automobile.

The daughter of one of the most respected families in Sterling, has not been seen since Thursday night, when she accepted the stranger's offer to take her home from the school graduation exercises she had been attending.

This man had been noticed in the vicinity of the school before, according to the police, lurking in the vicinity. He had several times been observed in conversation with the older girl students.

Citizens joined in the hunt here, following a search of the girl's home by the girl's disappearance, and the rumors of white sheet rings rapidly spread as the trace of her was found.

CLOSE EAST WING OF PRISON AT SHERBORN

Sherborn, June 28.—The east wing of the state prison farm at this town has been closed, due to the small number of women prisoners being sent there since prohibition. The number of women sent to this institution has steadily decreased.

PROBE ELWELL PHONE CALLS

Prosecutors Still Puzzled by Conflicting Evidence Over Wire Talks

relations with him were wholly social, or on his servants.

"Sunday morning," said Pendleton at the Rockaway Hunt Club which is near his Long Island home, "I saw a story in a newspaper and from what I read between the lines I judged they were shooting at me.

"TOLD STRAIGHT STORY."

"I attended to the business of ranting a house at Saratoga Springs and then I came back. If the whole thing were not so serious it would be the greatest joke I ever heard. I thought I had done all that I could to aid the district attorney. I told him a straight story and everything I possibly could. It has all been printed in the newspapers."

Pendleton first became prominent in the case when a telephone operator declared that two calls had been made from Elwell's home to Pendleton's home at 1:30 o'clock on the morning Elwell was slain. Neither call was answered.

Pendleton told the district attorney that a telephone was on a table between his bed and that of his wife and that neither was awakened by the bell.

MYSTERY IN CALLS.

The telephone calls create an element of mystery because Elwell is not thought to have been home when they were made. They constitute a factor of the utmost importance unless the operator is mistaken. There has been much confusion about telephone calls from Elwell's house.

Immediately after the crime, it was said that there had been several "round 4:30 o'clock in the morning, but later it was said that it had been proved that they were made at 4:20 in the afternoon, hours after Elwell was dead.

The newest angle on which the detectives have been working is that Elwell surprised burglars in his home and that he was killed by them. In view of the fact that nothing was stolen, this theory is not generally upheld.

HOOVER GOES WEST, TO 'CONVENE'? NO, TO FISH

Chicago, June 28.—Herbert Hoover and family boarded an overland limited West tonight. Going to San Francisco and the Democratic Convention? "Not on your life!" He's going fishing for honest-to-goodness suckers around Truckee, Nev. "Michigan's delegates are instructed for you," it was suggested to the former food administrator. "Zat so?" he replied. "Well, I'm not interested. I didn't instruct 'em, did I? No." And he was on his way.

FLASHLIGHT BETRAYS SOMERVILLE THIEF

Somerville police today were searching for a burglar who was interrupted while rifling the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Wortondyke at No. 22 Packard avenue, West Somerville, while the family was sitting on the piazza. The rays of a flashlight moving about within the apartment attracted Wortondyke's attention. In the parlor he discovered a man examining drawers of bureaus. The thief escaped by jumping from a rear window.

DORCHESTER COUPLE'S SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Thomas S. Demarsko, twenty-seven years old, and Victoria J. Evans, twenty-four years old, both of No. 16 Southwick street, Dorchester, were sentenced to six months in the House of Correction on a serious charge in the Dorchester court today. Sentence was suspended until January 1.

Hunt 'Jealous Woman' After Poisoning

New Haven, June 28.—Search was begun today for the wife of Frank Sokolowsky, formerly of Boston, who fled through the night toward Bridgeport a few minutes after her husband, labor organizer and shoe manufacturer, was found dead in his home of carbolic acid poisoning.

Local police would only say in explanation of their hunt that they were convinced Sokolowsky had been murdered, and the crime was the deed of a jealous woman.

On the dresser when the police entered to make an investigation was an opened letter from a woman in New York. It was couched in endearing terms, and pleaded with the slain labor chief to leave his wife for the writer.

The missing wife, last seen running from the taxicab which had conveyed her to Bridgeport, is a Boston girl. She left Boston for New York city in 1914, and left behind in her wild flight her six-year-old daughter.

She had opened the letter from "the other woman" during the afternoon before the murder, according to the police, and was raging with jealousy when her husband returned from Waterbury, where he had been addressing strikers.

"MAN OF MYSTERY."

Sokolowsky was something of a man of mystery here. Organizer for the American Federation of Labor, he was also partner in a paying shoe business in Bridgeport, Conn., and a man of much education.

Only twenty-seven years old, he was rapidly becoming a picturesque and powerful figure in American Federation of Labor councils.

First hint of the Sokolowsky tragedy came early Saturday morning. The family of W. J. Kelley, occupying the same apartment house in the Bears street residential section, found husband and wife in bitter altercation.

8,000 LOST BY TURKS' ARMY

Reported Greeks Wiped Out Corps in Battle East of Smyrna

By International News Service.

Washington, June 28.—The Greek army has annihilated the Turkish army corps in fighting at Alashear, east of Smyrna, according to an official communique issued in Athens and telegraphed to the State Department today.

Advices reaching the Greek capital state that Turkish losses in killed, wounded and prisoners approximated 8,000, and that large quantities of war materials, locomotives and other rolling stock fell into the hands of the Greeks.

Greek cavalry is reported to have cut off the retreat of the Turkish forces and the whole Greek line has advanced ten kilometres to the east.

GREEKS TO FIGHT TURKS ALONG DARDANELLES

London, June 28.—Under the protection of a British fleet, Greek soldiers have been disembarked at Pandorma to assist in driving Mustapha Kemal Pasha's Turkish nationalist troops from the shores of the Dardanelles, said a Constantinople dispatch to the Evening News today.

Urge Married Women As Best Teachers

New York, June 28.—In a report issued by the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching it is declared that married women should make the best school teachers because of their leadership in the community and their experience of home life.

"There is probably no work to which marriage and normal home life could contribute a qualification more essential than they could to teaching," says the report.

IRISH HOPE IN DEMOCRATS

Sinn Fein Envoy Tells Erin How Vote Will Go in America

London, June 28.—Rioting raged all night at Fermoy, said a Dublin dispatch. There was much looting and all of the windows in houses on three principal streets of the town were smashed. Fires broke out. Inhabitants of the town charge these were started by soldiers in retaliation for the kidnaping of Brigadier-General Lucas by Sinn Feiners.

Dublin, June 28.—Eighty persons have been arrested here during the past forty-eight hours, charged with violation of the military curfew law, the resulting strike situation in South Ireland is reported to be growing worse.

London, June 28.—H. V. Boland, a Sinn Fein envoy who has just returned from the United States, was quoted in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Dublin today, as making the following statement to the Freeman's Journal:

"Our great hope now is that the Democratic National convention in San Francisco will adopt a plank pledging official recognition of the Irish Republic. The Irish vote in the United States will go to the President's candidate who is prepared to do the right thing for Ireland and who will abide by America's war aims."

SAYS HARVARD FOSTERS 'REDS'

Goldstein Declares Knights of Columbus Are Ready to Fight Bolshevism

Philadelphia, June 28.—Seventy-one colleges and universities in America are teaching to their students the principles of Bolshevism," asserted David Goldstein, a proselyted Jew and former Socialist here, of the Boston School of Political Economy in an address at the Broadway Theatre, Broad street and Snyder avenue, under the auspices of the Americanization and Reconstruction Program of the Knights of Columbus.

"Harvard, Yale, the University of Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Chicago and even Wellesley, a prominent girls' college number among those," he said, "which are today fostering principles of Socialism, for which Bolshevism is merely a nickname."

WARNS AMERICANS.

"Americans, men your moral fences for today America finds itself face with the threat of a Bolshevist invasion. Our schools and colleges are being used to drive out of men's hearts the belief in God, and the integrity of family relations is being unwholesomely disrupted by promiscuous divorce. Today we are nearly at the brink. The American universities are blasting the faith of the ages. When atheism is rampant, then we find evidence spreading and Bolshevism taking root.

Mr. Goldstein, continuing on the Bolshevistic influence which he believes is tending to permeate the schools and colleges of the nation, said that already there had been founded the Intercollegiate Socialist League, in which the leading educational institutions of the land were representated.

MOTIVE HIDDEN.

He said that, in the formation of the societies in colleges of a Socialistic nature, attempts were made to give the impression that the purpose was to study the question abstractly, but that the real hidden motive was for the purpose of practicing actively the doctrines of Bolshevism.

"The Socialistic organization," he said, "which are permitted to flourish at such institutions as the University of Pennsylvania, at Harvard and Yale, is an indication that there are some people there among us that are not flagrantly flaunt the Red flag, but let me tell you now that there are several hundred thousand Knights of Columbus who stand ready to see that Old Glory does not trail in the slime, and that the Red flag of Bolshevism goes, where it belongs, in the gutter."

TWO KILLED IN TIRE FACTORY EXPLOSION

Pottstown, Pa., June 28.—Two officials of the Vulcanized Tire & Rubber Company were killed in an explosion and fire that wrecked the company's plant here. A third man is expected to die. The dead are William J. Walsh, thirty-three, president of the company, and James A. Mayo, thirty-two, Superintendent Frank Walsh, brother of the president is the injured man. The explosion ignited a mass of flammable chemicals, causing the explosion. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

LOSES DIAMOND PIN, OFFERS $500 REWARD

For twenty-five years Mrs. W. F. Kessler has lived at 1 Washington Terrace, Newtonville, carried a diamond pin and a cameo brooch in a chamois bag for her waist.

The diamond pin was worth more than $1,000, experts told Mrs. Kessler. Mrs. Kessler lost the bag somewhere between Newtonville and Warren street, Allston. She reported the loss to the Boston Elevated offices. A reward of $500 has been offered.

HARVESTER COMPANY OFFICIAL IS DEAD

Chicago, June 28.—Philip Sidney Post, vice-president of the International Harvester Company, died today at his home in Winnetka, following a stroke of apoplexy. He had been connected with the company since 1902. In 1910 he was appointed general counsel and elected to the vice-presidency.

Appeal to Girl to Return Home

LUCY KAYSARLIAN.

Promising in advance that everything will be forgiven, the family of sixteen-year-old Lucy Kaysarlian of Watertown today publicly appealed to the girl to return home. She vanished Friday night.

Parents of the fugitive are ready to welcome her even if it means accepting as her husband the Harvard sophomore with whom they suspect she eloped.

Sculptress Is Bride in Art Romance

MRS. N. H. BATCHELDER

Stockbridge, June 28.—A commission which gives Evelyn Beatrice Longman, New York sculptress, received two years ago to fashion in marble the features of the dead wife of Nathaniel Horton Batchelder, headmaster of the Loomis School at Windsor, Conn., started a romance that resulted today in the marriage of Batchelder and the artist.

A picturesque glen at Chesterwood, the estate of Daniel Chester French, eminent American sculptor, was the setting for the wedding. The youngest guest was the bridegroom's little son, Nathaniel Horton Batchelder, five years old. Miss Margaret French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chester French, and Osgood Batchelder of Chicago, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants.

MAYOR TO RAISE FLAG ON 4TH

All Day Program to Close With Exercises at Frog Pond, on Common

All is in readiness for the Independence Day celebration next Monday, arranged by Mayor Peters' committee on public celebrations. A new feature will be neighborhood programs in a dozen sections of the city. The festivities will open at 9:30 a. m., with a flag raising on the Common by Mayor Peters. Then will follow exercises in Faneuil Hall, and reading of the Declaration of Independence on the balcony of the old State House by Daniel E. Whelton of the English High School.

Jacob L. Wiseman is to be the orator at Faneuil Hall, with Mayor Peters presiding.

An athletic carnival will be held on the Common, and a water carnival in the afternoon a swimming carnival will take place in the Charles River basin.

A feature of the neighborhood celebration will be the distribution of box lunches to children. The task of furnishing the cream and neighborhood organizations will duplicate it. There will be a display of pigeons on the grounds.

In the evening at four places, the city will inaugurate the "Park speaks," with patriotic programs. One orator will be Mayor Peters. Opportunity and another the official Red Cross film record of the "Historic Fourth of July" in Paris.

The big issue of the city's observance will be at night on the Common, when there will be a band concert on the Frog Pond and on this will take place various national and feature numbers, ending with patriotic songs by choruses and ending with a pageant, whose keynote will be the Declaration. Pilgrim Tercentenary.

There will be community singing under the leadership of Leon E. Bandwin. F. C. Brown is chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the Common celebration. Mayor Peters will give a reception to new citizens at Ringstaff Hill on the Common at 7 p. m.

NEW YORK IS RIVAL OF NEW ENGLAND FOR COAL

New York, June 28.—New York was today placed on an equal basis of priority with New England by a modification of the fuel administrator's commerce commission coal restriction. The ban on coal exports will continue. Exporters who have been shipping coal to Europe at a big profit are heavy losers by the continuation order. Steamships from New York may be chartered and loaded in time to sail within the next few days owing to the difficulty in securing bunker coal.

TREADWAY TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

Pittsfield, June 28.—Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge will again be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the House in the First Congressional District, it is announced.

Mr. Treadway will have served eight years in the House on March 4, 1921.

PENNSYLVANIA MEN MAY GO OUT TUESDAY

Philadelphia, June 28.—Unless the Pennsylvania Railroad meets demands of trainmen by 11 o'clock tomorrow morning a strike of 58,000 men in the service of the company is threatened. The men, by an overwhelming vote, decided to quit their places if their demands are not met immediately.

ART STUDIO IN DIVORCE SUIT

Allege Mrs. Beckwith Used $5,000 Apartment to Meet Other Men

An art studio in the Back Bay which former Mayor Fred H. Beckwith of Dover, N. H., wealthy clubman and overseas veteran, fitted up for his war bride, Marion Taylor Beckwith, a Boston artist and divorcee, is said to have hastened suit for divorce in which Beckwith entered in the New Hampshire courts, alleging infidelity and naming Harold A. Galpin, a married man of Belmont, whose wife has sued him for divorce and seeks custody of their five-year-old son.

The Boylston street studio was one of Beckwith's many gifts to the girl whom he married on the eve of his departure for France after a rapid-fire courtship started at a function at Camp Devens, where he began his army career as a private in the 301st Artillery, in which he later won a commission as first lieutenant. He was a Dover boy when drafted. He spent more than $5,000 furnishing the studio with rugs and tapestries and bric-a-brac to satisfy his bride's whim. She told him she thought a studio in the artistic section of Boston would help her in her studies.

It is now alleged that the studio gift to Beckwith an excuse to be away from her home in Dover a great deal, it is charged by Mrs. Beckwith, with entertained young men at the studio. She and her friends deny this and say that the stories of "candle light" parties are inventions.

Mrs. Beckwith had three of three automobiles. It is alleged that she drove Galpin to Shattuck Inn, Jaffrey, N. H., where dedicates force the door of Mrs. Beckwith's apartment, reported that Mrs. Beckwith, with and that she and Galpin returned to Boston by train.

Mrs. Beckwith is twenty-eight and her husband thirty-two. She first married when she was but eighteen to Earle M. Selfridge of Melrose who divorced her and continues to care for their little daughter.

Mrs. Beckwith in spite of her youth is accredited of having been instrumental in wrecking three homes in less than ten years, owing to her beauty and charm. She is said to have been a frequent visitor of the "Golden Rooster" a Bohemian tea and lounging room on Charles street recently closed by the police.

REFUSES TO PROCECUTE STREET-FIGHT RIVALS

James "Army" Bulger, who has only one arm, and Michael O'Hara, known as "Left" Mc[illegible], of Winthrop street, Charlestown, and Frank McDonald, of Bulger street, whose attack on Bulger is in front of the Crawford House attracted 500 persons to Dock square, O'Hara and McDonald pleaded guilty to assault and battery charges and drew game. Bulger said they were his friends and he didn't desire prosecution. The case would not be arraigned, when his condition permits on a street-fighting charge. The other two will be arraigned again Friday.

VALUE MRS. MANSFIELD'S ESTATE AT $28,900

The will of Alvira D. Mansfield of Medford, who died in March, was allowed in East Cambridge Probate Court today. The estate is valued at $28,900. Inventories were filed today of the estates of Ellen O. Ayers of Malden, valued at $42,161, and Mrs. Jennie E. Lee of Reading, valued at $24,112.

CAMBRIDGE COTTAGERS LOSE CLOTHING IN FIRE

Marlboro, June 28.—Ten members of a Cambridge young men's club were forced to go home in borrowed clothes when a cottage they had destroyed in a fire which burned down the cottage they were occupying on Lake Williams, Hudson, early today. Theodore Temple, had been let for the season to the Cambridge club. It was totally destroyed while the group were bathing.

NEW HAMPSHIRE 'SICK LIST' ON WAY TO HEALTH

Concord, N. H., June 28.—Ninety per cent. of the liquor legally sold by druggists in New Hampshire during May was used for "medicinal" purposes by Manchester and Concord citizens, according to a report by George H. Whitcher, Federal prohibition director. One hundred and thirty-seven gallons were prescribed for each 747 gallons in April and 213 gallons in March.

WALSH FRAMES LEAGUE PLANK TO PREVENT PARTY DEFEAT

WOULD FORBID U. S. FROM ENTERING FOREIGN WARS

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.

San Francisco, June 28.—Declaring that the Democratic party is certain to suffer a disastrous defeat if it goes before the people on the Wilson League of Nations, United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts announced the details of the league plan which he will submit to the convention today.

The important provisions which Senator Walsh said must be put into the league covenant to protect the independence of America and to guarantee the rights of liberty to all the oppressed people of the world are these:

1—That the country shall engage in no wars organized and waged by foreign nations.

2—That America will retain its own right to arm itself for the defense for its own liberty.

3—That we shall reserve the right to withdraw from the league "on our own terms."

4—That no nation shall have more votes than America.

He asserted that the people of the United States would be founded on the democratic idea that all governments derive their power from the consent of the governed, would not willingly consent to any pact which would compel them to bring their great power against any nation which was seeking to establish self-government for itself.

PACT APPROVAL MEANS DEFEAT.

That statement, he said, must be incorporated in the league platform if the party is to be democratic in any other way than in name only.

"Every member of this convention agrees in his heart and the men that are leading orators admit in their private conversation," said Senator Walsh, "that an unequivocal indorsement of the present league covenant would be overwhelmingly repudiated by the people at the election this year.

"The Republican party's highest hope is that the Democrats indorse the league. Such an indorsement will drive to Mr. Harding the support of the friends of the league, foreign and the other independent, liberal republicans, who could not consistently support Mr. Cox on the Democratic record. America means more to them than all else.

Senator Walsh said he felt that the predominant thought of the leaders here was to save President Wilson from the adoption of a League platform which might be construed as a rebuke.

"As to his personal feelings he said he was sympathetic with the high ideals for which he has striven. I believe we can secure the adoption of a league covenant which would safeguard the rights of the world," said Senator Walsh. "It should be our endeavor to do that purpose, and the plank which I offer contains that recommendation.

CERTAIN TO TAKE FLOOR.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that we are entering the final campaign since the close of the war and the Versailles conference and that our highest duty is to declare for a league that will protect our country."

Senator Walsh announced that he will offer the league plank to the platform committee, of which he will be the Massachusetts member. Asked if in the event of defeat in the committee he will bring the league fight to the floor of the convention, he replied: "I will cross that bridge when I come to it. There is little doubt that I shall take the floor of the convention to declare his ideas of Americanism."

TEXT OF THE WALSH PLANK.

The plank in full follows:

"The Democratic party favors a league of nations to promote and maintain international peace and security and will do all things within its power to establish such a league.

"We denounce any movement of any political party seeking to make the question of the Versailles treaty a political issue in the coming election. The drafting and ratification of international agreements and treaties should never be subject to partisan or political considerations.

"We approve the ideals and principles which President Wilson expressed in the name of the American people and his splendid efforts under most trying and difficult circumstances to establish a league of nations to promote international justice and peace.

"The Democratic party, meeting for the first time since the proclamation to America of the issues growing out of the Versailles treaty and League of Nations covenant, further declares that its candidates, if elected, shall support the following principles as fundamentally necessary to secure the approval and support of the American Government to any treaty or covenant for a league of nations, and that it will support no international contract or arrangement which obligates the United States to:

FORBIDS FOREIGN WARS.

"1—Engage in wars waged by foreign nations, or to submit to a foreign tribunal questions of its vital interests.

"2—Which limits or impairs the right of the United States to arm for national defence when it is menaced by foreign powers or when the country or its armed forces have been attacked.

"3—Which gives to any foreign state or empire votes in the league in the aggregate greater than that of the United States.

"4—Which endangers or impairs the Monroe Doctrine, or which does not leave the United States, upon proper notice, free to withdraw from the league on its own terms.

"5—Reiterating our faith in the doctrine that governments derive their power from the consent of the governed, the Democratic party declares that it will not consent to any league which obligates the United States to assist in the subjugation of any people, or to aid in preventing any people from seeking to gain their liberty and establish a government of their own free choice."

DE VALERA FIRM ON RECOGNITION

Not Sympathy, or Any Other Evasion, to Be His Plea Before Convention

San Francisco, June 28.—President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Republic, who was at Elko, Nevada, on his way to the Democratic convention here, sent the following telegram to Andrew J. Gallagher, local chairman of the American Commission on Irish Independence:

"Recognition alone, not sympathy or any other evasion, will give the hope of Ireland's plea before the Democratic national convention. Please make this clear publicly. Ireland's real friends will offer the same plank to the Democrats that was refused by the Republicans."

The telegram is looked upon as an effort to prevent the confusion that resulted at Chicago when two planks relating to Ireland were submitted.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON GLAD HE LOST HIS EYE

Chicago, Ill., June 28.—"I'm glad I lost my eye," William H. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson today told an audience of 1,000 at an anti-saloon meeting. "The friendliness I made through the accident are worth a bushel of eyes." He said the loss of his eyes gave him impetus in prohibition work England that surpassed anything in that country's history.

CARDINAL GIVES POPE'S BLESSING AT CATHEDRAL

Cardinal O'Connell bestowed the apostolic benediction on the congregation which filled every seat in the solemn high mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross today. He also imparted the blessing received from Pope Benedict the Holy Father, authorizing the cardinal to bless all the people of his flock.

She Gained 33 Pounds

Among the many interesting cases of nerve relief and increase in weight credited to the use of Nitro-Phosphate is that of Mrs. Rose Harris, who was thin and nervous when she began weighing 101 pounds. After using Nitro-Phosphate faithfully, she had reached 134 pounds, a desirable weight for her. The endorsement of Mrs. Harris appeared was no great that friends of hers were amazed.

Nitro-Phosphate aids in overcoming many cases of overwork, brain or mind fatigue, tendency to hysteria, nervousness or track down sleeplessness, as a of self-control, energy and inspiration. Nitro-Phosphate is one of the most effective replacements of those who tell of the efficiency of Nitro-Phosphate in overcoming nervousness and allied troubles, and in aiding nature to increase weight steadily, healthfully, sustained. Be well, be Super.

You should add years to your life, and have fun and health in doing it. Buy Nitro-Phosphate and following the simple directions of the health writer accompanying each box.

Bryan Submits "No Surrender" Plank

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Copyright, 1920, by W. J. Bryan.

San Francisco, June 28.—When the convention opens today it will be confronted by issues which will for a couple of days overshadow booms for candidates. The issue talked about most is the one involving the prohibition amendment and its enforcement by Federal statute. The changes of attitude by the representatives of the Knights of Thirst have been kaleidoscopic in number and variety, if not in speed.

At first we had the cocksure opponents of prohibition, led by Governor Edwards and heartily seconded by Governor Smith, Governor Edwards wanted to make prohibition a State as "wet as the Atlantic Ocean."

URGENT TO HEAD "WET" DRIVE.

Then Governor Smith of New York, in a burst of enthusiasm, denounced prohibition as worse than Prussianism, and a Democratic convention held in New York declared unalterable opposition to the ratification of the national amendment and pledged the party to modify the State statute and Federal statute law enforcing it during the two they impede short legislative sessions. It was the desire of the convention and the nation's return to the saloon.

While there is a large percentage among those who aspire to lead this motely band of drys, Senator Edge of New Jersey will probably be given the distinction of flag-bearer, his fitness for the place having been affirmed by the Jerseyites to the New Jersey brewers and by the fact that he was selected to be the first witness before the resolutions committee in the St. Louis convention of 1916, who brought in a minority report, against admitting women to the inalienable functions of the ballot box, to full citizenship and suffrage.

20,000,000 WOMEN WATCH.

The drys rely upon the moral strength of their cause and the spiritual urge of those who sent delegates to this convention. The cocksure drys are those when the men alone vote. It is parched and brown when women vote and it is quite dry. It is that about 20,000,000 of women will sit in judgment upon the candidates presented by the various parties this year.

As nearly all these women can read and write a large percentage of girls in high school—the writing of platforms becomes an important matter.

BRYAN'S OWN PLANK.

It is, of course, impossible to forecast the exact language of the dry plank, as it will emerge from the subcommittee of conference. But I shall submit to the committee for the consideration of its members the following:

"We heartily congratulate the Democratic party upon the splendid leadership in the submission and ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution, and we pledge the party to the effective enforcement of the National law, honestly and in good faith, without any increase in the alcoholic content of beer, heretofore and now, without any weakening of any others of its provisions."

Colby Will Direct Defence of League

By International News Service.

San Francisco, June 28.—Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby will direct the administration forces against the league opposition offensive of William Jennings Bryan and Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, it was announced today.

The substitution of Senator Robinson of Arkansas for Colby as permanent chairman of the convention was agreed upon by administration leaders after President Wilson had expressed a desire that the former progressive "while he be allowed to act as the administration floor leader in the pending League battle."

Supporters of the President declare they are confident that Colby, whose defense skill through many a hot political conflict, will prove the match of either Bryan or Walsh.

MAYOR TO WELCOME CONGREGATIONALISTS

With the singing of Old Hundred, Congregationalists from all over the world will open their fourth decennial meeting of the International council in Mechanics Building tomorrow. The meetings will last a week.

Mayor Peters and Chairman Arthur H. Wellman of the Boston committee of arrangements will welcome the delegates, and Rev. Dr. A. E. Garvie of England will respond.

The opening session will consist largely of a praise service marked by the singing of the chorus, "The Voyage of the Mayflower." A review of world-wide Congregationalism will be given by Rev. Herbert C. Herring of New York, followed by an address on "The Church and Her Ministry of Mercy" by Owen R. Lovejoy, formerly president of the U. S. Council of Social Workers.

WASHINGTON BATHERS CHEER PRESIDENT

Washington, June 28.—President and Mrs. Wilson motored for three hours and a half yesterday. During the trip the presidential car drew up at the tidal basin bathing beach, where hundreds of bathers were enjoying a midday dip. The President, looking most cheerful, spent several minutes watching the bathers. His identity was discovered quickly and the crowd gave him a cordial greeting. The President raised his hat and smiled several times.

Library Experts to Meet

Portsmouth, N. H., June 28.—The New England Library Association opens its annual three-day convention at the Oceanic Hotel, Isle of Shoals, Thursday. Governor Bartlett will deliver the address of welcome.

TWO STATES ARE FOR WALSH

Massachusetts and Rhode Island Back Him if He Says "Yes"

By CHARLES O. POWER.

C. O. POWERS.

San Francisco, Cal., June 28.—If he wants them, Senator David I. Walsh can have votes from Massachusetts and Rhode Island for the nomination for President.

He says he appreciates the compliment, but does not believe he will sanction the movement, as he is here for the purpose of bringing forth a real American platform and not to receive honors from the party. He did ask them to bear in mind that he was more anxious about the platform than compliments for himself and to remember that if the platform should be one he could not stand on, he would decline any request them to refrain from voting for him. He told the Massachusetts delegates who are asking to boom him, practically the same thing.

Walsh addressed the delegation and guests on the subject and left no room to doubt that the Bay State representation would not support him unless he said he has no particular candidate for the nomination for President or Vice-President personally but would be the duty of the delegates to vote for candidates who are in favor of the League of Nations, rather than an international character.

QUINN IS NAMED.

James A. Donovan of Lawrence placed Mayor E. W. Quinn of Cambridge in nomination for member of the National Committee. Several members of the delegation were in favor of Daniel F. Doherty of Westfield for the place, but he persisted that he did not want it and, besides, preferred to promote party harmony by accepting honors and responsibilities.

The result of the delegation's voting follows: Chairman, Senator Walsh; secretary, Charles H. McGlue of Lynn; National Committeeman, Martin Quinn of Cambridge; member of resolutions or platform committee, Senator Walsh; member of credentials committee, Richard H. Long of Framingham; member of committee on rules, District Attorney Pelletier; member of committee on order of convention, William G. McKechnie of Springfield elected after Daniel F. Doherty of Westfield had declined; assistant secretary of convention, Charles F. Campbell of Worcester; member of committee to notify Presidential nominees, Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg; member of committee to notify Vice-Presidential nominee, Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell.

No attempt was made to re-elect John W. Coughlin of Fall River as national committeeman. He has held the place twelve years and is a staunch administration man.

McADOO IN AIR, SAYS WALSH

Bay State Senator Sees Cox and Palmer Falling Off After Early Ballots

Francisco and of the State of California seems to be more for Cox than for any other candidate. I do not mean the sentiment of the delegates who are here but rather the residents of California. Governor Cox is certain to receive a very substantial vote and it will come from delegates from nearly every State in the Union.

Mr. Palmer is by no means out of the running. He has influential leaders in every delegation working for him and I think will poll a larger vote from what might be called the "workers" in the party than any other candidate. His vote will be a substantial one but I do not believe it is likely to increase. It will reach the maximum during the early ballotting.

POSSIBLE DARK HORSES.

Senator Owens will receive a complimentary vote from the South and from a part of the country, where he is especially well-known, and he also will receive complimentary votes from pronounced progressive Democrats such as Mr. Bryan and those who follow his leadership.

As yet, Governor Edwards' name does not been extensively discussed. Perhaps this may be due to the non-arrival until today of the New Jersey delegation.

But little is heard of the other men except possibly that Vice-President Marshall or John W. Davis, of West Virginia, are likely to loom up as the dark horses of the convention, if a time arrives when no other candidate can get two-thirds of the votes of the convention.

NAMES FOR SECOND PLACE.

Among the names mentioned for the nomination of Vice-President are Governor Stewart, of Montana; Victor Murdock, of Kansas, and Secretary of Agriculture Meredith.

But in the last analysis, the one predominating thought hidden in the mind of every delegate is the manner in which the convention will handle the League of Nations issue.

Of course there is the prohibition question, which has many champions, pro and con, but the interest in this and all other issues is subordinate to the interest in the plank on the League of Nations. How can a plank be drafted which will not appear to favor or endanger President Wilson, which will avoid a straight-out and-out issue with the Republicans on the question of the league covenant, with or without reservations? That is the puzzle.

No one in this convention wants the Democratic party to be compelled to take a defensive position against President Wilson and his friends on this issue, if they have to make a final choice, that they are about taking a stand which will eliminate that issue.

The Democratic party's opportunity for success, in my opinion, rests upon a campaign upon Democratic issues rather than a campaign which will place it in a position of defending an internal contract without reservation. Most of the issues, therefore, are principles, rather than the man, the important problems for this political convention to solve.

Wilson Going to Sea for Vacation

Washington, June 28.— Signs are multiplying at the White House that President Wilson will board the splendid presidential yacht Mayflower and set out for a long vacation at sea, instead of going to some shore resort.

The talk today was that he is to head southward immediately after the adjournment of the Democratic national convention at San Francisco. It is said he will go at least as far as the Panama Canal, and the extremist gossips have it that he will not miss the chance to go through the canal and up the Pacific Coast.

The Mayflower recently has been refurnished in part, one new feature being an elevator. It is said, however, that the lift will not be necessary for the President has recovered his health at great strides within the past few weeks.

Curtailment in Woolen and Shoe Industries

Slowing Up Causes Some Uneasiness in Labor; Confidence Must Be Restored; Unique Wool Situation

Curtailment in the woolen mills and shoe factories is causing some uneasiness in business circles. Prominent men in these New England industries are far from pessimistic on the outlook. They believe that with the Democratic convention over, easier money after the crops are financed as predicted by some bankers and continued improvement in the railroad situation, confidence will be restored and the looms and shoe machinery will again buzz.

With the closing of factories, some new labor problems have come up, particularly in the shoe industry. Manufacturers claim that the break in the shoe market makes it impossible for them to make any further concessions to labor. In Haverhill the manufacturers seek an agreement with their employes that there will be no new demands for a certain period.

They ask this so that they can resume business with some assurance. The shoe market is distinctly a buyers' market and manufacturers are compelled to make their margin of profit very small to get business. Hence their desire to be assured that new wage demands will not be made while they are in this condition.

Much has been said about a shortage of shoes. Just how short the country is of shoes is a question that will determine the margin of depression in this industry. Shoe dealers are being forced to liquidate their stocks now. The disposition of the public against high prices, efforts of the Federal Reserve Banks to curb inflation and the backward Spring, have made this imperative.

There is bound to be an end to the shoe sales that have been so common lately. Stocks will soon be exhausted and retailers will again be in the market for shoes. The present experience of the shoe, hide and leather industries would seem to insure that the mania to bid prices up out of all reason has been pretty well curbed. A more orderly and sane market should ensue. This would benefit every one but the rankest speculator.

Wool Market Still Quiet

An extraordinary situation exists in the woolen industry. The slowing up of buying from manufacturers has rippled back to the Western sheep growers and they are in a serious plight. Prices have tumbled from 30 that there is practically no market. Similar conditions are reported from London. This is ordinarily a dull season of the year, but this year it is exceptionally quiet.

The condition of the growers has made action in Washington necessary. Four of the leading dealers on Summer street extension attended the conference at Washington between representatives of the wool growers and the Federal Reserve Board. Banks have been refusing to carry loans on wool. With no market the wool growers have been unable to sell to pay notes. They wanted the Federal Reserve Board to urge member banks to renew loans, in the hope that the market would rise and they could sell their wool without a ruinous loss.

This the Federal Reserve Board has done. But it is left to the banks to decide how much they will lend on wool and how much margin of safety they are to require. Some believe that this is the "joker" in the whole matter. Keeping that Western wool off the market is expected to result in stabilizing the market.

Cancellations Condemned

A resumption of the mill operations would soon be reflected in wool prices. Against this, however, must be placed the fact that the supply of wool throughout the world is enormous. The United States government has not disposed of all the wool it commandeered during the war; there are 240,000,000 pounds on hand in Argentina, and there are some 250,000,000 pounds of Australian wool hanging over the market. Indeed, it would require a very wild orgy of business to amputate this mountain of wool.

One does not have to talk with shoe or woolen cloth manufacturers very long to hear some caustic remarks against the practice of cancelling orders. The American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers has taken up this subject and the shoe manufacturers' organization has also taken steps to stop it.

Various proposals are being considered for curbing cancellations. It is argued that it is morally unfair and against the ethics of good business for a dealer, whether he be retailer or manufacturer, to cancel an order for no other reason than fear of a slump in business, especially when the goods are "in the works."

In this case the manufacturer or seller must stand the loss. Various excuses are offered for cancellations, such as delay in receipt and goods not up to sample. The woolen association is considering the establishment of a standard contract, which would make it next to impossible for cancellations, and the familiar "black list" of firms that cancel orders on the slightest whim is another proposal.

Coal Situation Is Worse

So far the cotton mills have not found it necessary to curtail, though business is unusually quiet. There has been no marking up of prices lately. The machinery business is running at top speed, as is the case in electrical apparatus, though new orders are not coming in the way they did six months ago. The coal situation is getting more acute each day, and unless coal is soon forthcoming in volume many industries will have to shut down.

Utilities Board Urges Freight Rate Increase

The following is the reply of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities to the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission for its views upon the petition of the railroads, now being heard, for an increase in freight rate of approximately twenty-five per cent.

Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen: The Department of Public Utilities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has carefully considered the railroad situation so far as conditions exist within its jurisdiction and has reached the following conclusions which it respectfully submits for the consideration of your honorable board.

The integrity of the transportation system is as vital to the welfare of the body politic as the proper functioning of the circulatory system is to the welfare of the body physical. The railroads owing to a variety of circumstances unnecessary to recite, have reached a condition where they do not and cannot at the present moment serve the vital needs of the country.

The condition of the railroads in Massachusetts, both as to roadbed and rolling stock, is such as to create grave apprehension as to their future safe operation unless they receive sufficient income to enable them to put and maintain their properties in proper order. As illustrations of this, two derailments have occurred recently in Massachusetts owing to inability of the railroads to secure the means to keep the roadbeds in proper repair. While we do not wish to over-emphasize this point or to disturb the public mind unnecessarily, we feel that unless adequate income is allowed the railroads the public will not only be deprived of the proper facilities which we have pointed out, but will actually run serious risks of life and limb while traveling.

SHOULD GRANT INCREASE.

We feel, therefore, from every point of view, that serious consequences will follow from a continued starving of the roads and that the Interstate Commerce Commission should grant the railroads sufficient revenue to enable them to fulfill their functions properly and adequately and to serve the public in the manner and to the extent which the common weal demands. Any question of doubt, therefore, as to the extent of proposed increases should, we feel, in view of the conditions now obtaining, be resolved in favor of the railroads. To give the railroads somewhat less than subsequent experience may demonstrate that they were entitled to will be purely prejudicial to the interests of the community, while if what is given them proves in the course of events to have been somewhat higher than was necessary at the time, very little, if any, damage will be done the public because subsequent adjustments can be made and, even if they are not made seasonably, income derived in excess of proper current requirements will belargely, if not entirely, needed for accrued depreciation and deferred maintenance. On the whole, therefore, that the railroad requirements should be met in a large spirit.

PROMPT RELIEF URGED.

While this situation should be dealt with, in our opinion, in the way which we have indicated, we venture the suggestion that your honorable board should recognize fully the peculiar situation of New England with respect to transportation, the exceptional difficulties which confront its railroads and the vital need of suitable adjustments in rates and divisions thereof in order that our emergency may give adequate and appropriate relief accordingly.

Department of Public Utilities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

America's Fisheries—An Undeveloped Industry of Great Possibilities

In its rich fisheries the United States possesses an undeveloped natural resource which needs only organization, capital and brains to make it one of the nation's greatest industries.

The American fisheries have hitherto been conducted so inefficiently that fish as an important food staple has failed to win the nation-wide popularity and market it deserves. So crude has been the organization of our fisheries, particularly as regards distribution, that fish in sufficient quantities and of good quality has been unobtainable regularly by much of our inland population.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries states that there is a huge unsatisfied demand for fish, especially in the Middle West and South. An enormously rich field awaits the wide-awake concern which enters the fish industry properly organized and equipped. In England, where twenty-five years ago the fisheries were in as chaotic a state as here now, more capital is profitably employed in the fisheries than in the American beef industry. The American beef supply is decreasing, and the consumption of fish will constantly grow.

The problems of handling and distributing fish and beef are identical, and progressive concerns are meeting them the right way, equipped with ample capital, fleets of steam trawlers, big central plants and excellent merchandising systems. All honor to these companies for their far-sighted progressiveness!

8 DROWNED IN NEW ENGLAND

Two Are Victims of Canoeing Accidents; Many Thrilling Rescues Seen

Eight persons were victims in drowning accidents and several others were saved from death by thrilling rescues in various parts of New England. Three of the fatalities occurred in Worcester county. The dead are:

Charles Vaglante, 20, of No. 74 Lawrence street, Lawrence—at Canoble Lake, Salem, N. H.

Frank S. Lewis, 21, of No. 25 North street, Salem—at Floating Bridge pond, Lynn.

Bernard Rowell, 22, of Union, Me.—at Holden.

Ernest Picard, 13—at Auburn.

Peter Chrae—at Whitinsville.

Edmond Burlingame, 19, of Torrington—at Highland Lake, Winsted, Connecticut.

Harry Rasmussen, 14—at Norwich, Connecticut.

Sidney Levangie, 7, of Franklin street, Braintree—at Quincy reservoir.

RESCUE ARMY OFFICER.

Clark Reardon, twenty-seven, army field officer at Camp Devens, was rescued from Fort Pond, Lancaster, after having been in the water helpless for twenty minutes. Although near death he was finally resuscitated by a Leominster physician who happened to be nearby.

The following persons, who were rushing to Whitinsville in an auto en learning of the drowning of Peter Chrae, were painfully injured when the machine collided with a trolley car: Mrs. Wasyl Kudurandkus, Rosie Nastor, thirty, severe scalp wound; Rosie Nastor, sprained left shoulder, and Francis Nastor, bruised face and cut over left eye. From Worcester, Mrs. Petronie Annios, twenty-seven, bruised right side and severe scalp wound; Mrs. Jennie Kudurandkus, seventy-five, and Adams Kudurandkus, left eye injured and nose lacerated. They were treated at the Whitinsville Hospital.

TWO CANOES CAPSIZE.

Vaglante was canoeing at Canoble Lake with a companion, and when they attempted to change seats the craft capsized and both men were thrown into the water. Earl Rolfe, motor boat engineer at the lake, succeeded in rescuing Vaglante's companion, but the former sank out of sight before he could be reached. The drowning body was recovered later.

At Winsted, Ct., a canoe paddled by Edmond Burlingame and Milburna Burlingame, sons of Torrington, capsized. Note tried to rescue his companion, but when the latter threw his arms around Note's neck he was forced to release his grip. The body was recovered.

Lewis was seized with cramps while bathing at Floating Bridge pond, Lynn, and before assistance arrived he sank out of sight.

Rasmussen was drowned at Norwich, while bathing. He sounded for depth but did not come up.

Young Lavangie was drowned in the Quincy reservoir, Braintree, while swimming with several other boys. He was seized with cramps and sank from sight.

SOMERVILLE HOSPITAL MATRON TO MARRY

The wedding of Miss Gladys M. Horne, assistant matron at the Somerville Contagious Hospital, and Harold D. Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grant of No. 66 Conwell avenue, West Somerville, will take place at 8 o'clock this evening at the home of the prospective parents-in-law. Norman MacQueen, pastor of the Clarendon Hill Presbyterian Church, will perform the ceremony. Mr. Grant is superintendent of construction for the Weiss Construction Company of Boston. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Allen W. Horne of Canada.

AUTOIST FINDS FARMER DYING IN HIS WAGON

Lawrence, June 28.—The body of a man who later proved to be Otis A. Gowing, aged 58, of Wilmington, was found in a wagon on the road leading from Wilmington to Andover, J. E. Pratt of No. 32 Hemingway avenue, Melrose who was passing in an auto, saw the aged farmer sitting in an odd posture in the vehicle. Investigating he found the man was breathing his last. The medical examiner of Middlesex County was summoned by chief of police Frank Smith of Andover, and death was pronounced due to natural causes, evidently heart disease.

Rob Policeman's Trees

Not even a police lieutenant may be sure of safety for his orchard. Lieutenant James M. Harmon of the Somerville police reported to his chief today following the detention of three boys and two girls, who were caught in the Harmon cherry trees.

Proper Thing Now Is to Peel Off Soiled Skin

Those who abhor sticky, greasy, shiny, streaked complexions should religiously avoid cream, powders and cosmetics during the heated days. There's no need for them, anyway, since the new, greaseless way have become known. No amount of persuasion will produce any evidence that you've been using the wax as it is applied to the skin. It is washed off in the morning, the complexion never looks like a make-up. Mercolized wax gradually takes off a thin complexion, instead of adding anything to make it worse. It has none of the disadvantages of cosmetics and accomplishes much more in keeping the complexion beautifully white, satiny and youthful, free from freckles, pimples, blotches and other blemishes. Just get an ounce of it at your druggist's and use what a few cents' worth daily. Use like cold cream.—Advertisement.

Scores Call for World War Medals

The men who fought applying for one of their rewards at the First Corps Cadets' Armory. Washington will verify their claims.

Scores of world war veterans made application today for the Victory medals at the First Corps Cadets' armory on Columbus avenue where a staff of officers and army field clerks distributed the blanks and helped the ex-service men fill them out. Only the application forms are now being distributed by the local army recruiting depot. The completed applications will be forwarded to Washington where they will be verified. The medals are expected to be ready for distribution soon and will be sent to the applicants from the distributing center in Philadelphia.

INSURANCE AID FOR VETERANS

Federal Trust Company Offers Plan for Conversion of War-Time Policies

To protect ex-service men and women who wish to convert their temporary war insurance into permanent government insurance, before the time elapses, the federal trust Company has established a special department for the war veterans.

Persons familiar with the details of government insurance have been retained by the bank to give information. Necessary blank forms have been provided and the bank will assist the many called. A letter from Joseph H. O'Neil, president of the Federal Trust Company, to the publisher of the Boston American, explaining the plan follows:

"We have been given to understand that many of the ex-service men and women have not taken the proper steps as yet to protect their government insurance.

"Under the provisions made they can change their temporary war insurance into a permanent United States Government insurance, which is payable in a lump sum in cash provided they give notice, properly protecting the arrangement on or before July 1. Most of the ex-service men are in need of this insurance protection and we feel that the loss of another neglected to act on the matter as yet.

"In order to assist them in protecting their interest, we have arranged at the suggestion of some of the people who are familiar with this matter to supply the necessary information, blank forms, etc., and will arrange for remittances in order to bind the insurance before the time limit expires.

"In this we are co-operating with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and Washington in conjunction with Major Thomas F. Murphy, No. 101 Milk street, who is acting to get this matter before persons interested.

"Under these lines we have today inserted at our own expense advertisements in the various Boston papers, including your publication, as we think this a matter of public importance. It would be a matter of public service and public spirit if you would give this matter publicity by an editorial article or any other way you think would fit the circumstances. Time is the principal factor now. Yours very truly,

(Signed) "J. H. O'NEIL,
President."

EAST BOSTON THIEVES WORK IN DAYTIME

The homes of former Representative Thomas J. Giblin and George F. Mahoney on Thornton street, Orient Heights section of East Boston, were entered by burglars in broad daylight while hundreds of persons sat about Bailey's Beach, a few hundred yards from the houses. Nothing was taken from the Giblin home, although drawers and closets were emptied. Two watches, valued at $100, were taken from Mr. Mahoney's house. The robbers entered the Giblin residence through an unlocked cellar door, and into the other through an upstairs window. A ladder taken from a nearby barn and left near the Mahoney home is believed to have been used.

MALDEN BOY SCOUT GOING TO ENGLAND

Roger Eliot Gay, the 14-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Felix W. Gay of No. 105 Salem street, Malden, who gained distinction by becoming a First class Boy Scout after a single year's membership, has been selected, in a competitive examination as one of the 250 Boy Scouts of America who will take part in the Scout Jamboree at the international meet held in London, Eng., from July 25 to Aug. 7.

FRANCE OPENING NEW AIR LINE TO GENEVA

Paris, June 28.—The French Government is planning an air service that will connect France with all European capitals. Following the opening of the Paris-London and Paris-Brussels lines, the French are opening up a line to Geneva. Preliminary to the establishment of one to Warsaw, which is expected to run regularly by the end of July, other lines will be opened gradually.

SUGAR PRICE HAS REACHED PEAK

Most Dealers Agree Climb Has Stopped; Some Look for Drop

Has the price of sugar stopped climbing? Most dealers agree that it has. Some are optimistic enough to think it is coming down. Geneva John H. Sherburne of the State Commission on Necessaries of Life, says cheaper sugar is coming.

The head of several stores said today: "The sugar situation is a little more comfortable than it was a month ago. There seems to be more of it available. I don't see how it is going to come down for at least a month, because most houses have their allotments arranged for at 22.50 cents a pound in bulk and 22.80 in cartons. This makes a retail price of 26 cents reasonable in the eyes of the State Commission.

"We are supplying needs for preserving, when we are certain that the buyer wants it for that purpose. We are able to accumulate only enough sugar for 48 hours ahead. It looks like the market has stopped climbing."

Sugar is beginning to arrive from Java and before long sugar from Argentina will be here in quantity. General Sherburne says there have been heavy receipts of sugar in Boston lately and the price is bound to drop.

Raid Means Death for 40 Fighting Cocks

Haverhill, June 28.—Forty "executions" will follow one of the biggest fighting-cock raids ever conducted in this section by State officers who routed 200 fans in Bradford woods, arrested three men, and seized forty live cocks and five that had been slain in battle. Two birds were fighting when the officers arrived in automobiles. Capt. Proctor and State Officers Myrra, Clark and Wells cornered Joseph Parent of Lynn, Henry Nadreau of Haverhill and Dennis Reynolds of Lawrence. They were each fined $25 today by Judge Winn in District court and paid.

The forty live cocks, said to be worth about $100 each, will be put to death under the law that applies to all such seizures.

NORTH ADAMS MILL SHUTS FOR TWO WEEKS

North Adams, June 28.—As a result of cancellation of orders the mill of the North Adams Manufacturing Company has shut down for two week. Other woolen and worsted mills in this section are said to be considering part time operation until conditions improve.

SON VAINLY GIVES BLOOD FOR FATHER

Adams, June 28.—After an effort had been made to save his life by transfusing a quart of blood from the veins of his son, Herman Spittler, aged forty-nine, of No. 14 Burt street, failed to improve and death soon ensued. He had been ill for some time with pernicious anemia.

TRUCK PLUNGES INTO CREEK

While Sightseers Gather Boy on Bicycle Is Struck by Automobile

While the driver of the automobile truck pulled up on Mystic avenue, Medford, today to watch the rescue of another truck which had crashed through the fence and plunged into Mystic Creek, Elwin Willey darted around the stalled vehicle on his bicycle and ran head on into a small touring car owned and operated by Albert H. Smith of No. 19 Frawley street, Roxbury.

Willey, who is fifteen years old, and lives at No. 16 Bowen avenue, Medford, had a remarkable escape. The driver of the touring car swung the front wheels over to the boy, cutting his turn so short as to carry the rear part free from the body. As a result Willey sustained only a bad fright, and scratches from his bicycle which was broken to bits by the impact.

In the creek, the truck which had turned turtle after it left the road, furnished a short thrill to the spectators who had gathered. Arsenio Bova, driver of the truck, was submerged in water and mud, and ruled his way out from under the hood. Salvatore Tiremmoga was thrown clear of the truck into the water head-first. Both men were out in a brief time. The truck is half buried where it landed.

Bova was driving the truck, which was empty, from Lawrence to Boston. He gave his residence of No. 24 Jackson street, Lawrence, and his companion lives at No. 153 Common street, Lawrence. The truck is owned by Henderson Campinio, No. 210 Common street, Lawrence.

King George Demands Lower Prices

London, June 28.—King George has given practical support to the price-cutting movement in England by refusing to renew any contracts for goods or services at present prices.

The King has notified sellers of bread, flour, soap, candles and coal, which are supplied to Buckingham Palace under contracts renewable every three months, that he will not continue to do business with the same firms unless they grant a 10 per cent. reduction in prices.

STRIKE IS UP TO MEETING

General Electric Problem Is to Be Decided in Lynn Tonight

Whether or not the 10,000 union employes of the General Electric plant at Lynn will strike on Thursday morning will be decided tonight at a joint meeting of the Metal Trades Council, the shop committees and the executive board of the Machinists' Union.

Immigration Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington, who has been in Lynn investigating the strike in the interests of the Department of Labor, will address the Union executives. It is expected that he will offer a compromise on behalf of the company, although he has intimated that the offer is not of a nature that will be acceptable to the employes.

If the joint committee decides to ignore the company's compromise the strike will be called for Thursday. It is explained by the union officials that it would be called before that time but for the fact that many of the older workers will receive a six-months' wage bonus on the preceding day, which they would lose were the walkout called sooner.

Vera Cruz, June 28.—One death from bubonic plague was reported during the past 24 hours.

RELIC OF WAR DAYS SOLD AT AYER STATION

Ayer, June 28.—Erected at a cost of $3,000 or more for the benefit of soldiers at Camp Devens by the Massachusetts Public Safety Committee, in 1918, the one and one-half story wooden "administration building" in Depot square was sold to a citizen of the town for $100, who in turn sold it to a resident of the Heights section for $300. A building mover lifted the structure from its concrete and granite foundation with the assistance of tackle and rollers and transferred it to the heights by means of an auto truck.

GEORGE R. FIELD CAN NOT GET DIVORCE HERE

The full bench of the Supreme Court has sustained Judge Hammond of the Superior Court in dismissing a divorce case brought by George R. Field against his wife, Ida F. Field, whom he charged with desertion. Field described himself as a resident of Waltham and his wife of Providence, R. I. Judge Hammond found that the domicile of Field was at Providence; that he and his wife had never lived together as husband and wife within this Commonwealth within the meaning of laws, and that the court had no jurisdiction.

RESOLUTE HAS BIG EDGE ON THE SHAMROCK FOR CUP CONTESTS

DATES SET FOR RACES AID U. S.

Boston Owned Boat Built for Light Winds, Which Rule in July

New York, June 27.—Sir Thomas Lipton is almost beaten before he starts his fight to lift America's cup. The dates for the meeting of the Resolute, the Boston-owned yacht, and the new Shamrock are very much in favor of Uncle Sam's defender and the course which will probably be agreed upon is also better fitted to the local racing craft.

The selection of Resolute as the defender was expected. The white sloop in her trials with Vanitie showed uncanny ability to make speed in light breezes.

While this was the outstanding point in sailing where Resolute really outclassed Vanitie, it was considered highly important by the cup committee in view of the fact that light winds are most likely to be the order during mid-July when the races will be sailed.

Only last Saturday the Shamrocks were becalmed off Sandy Hook and had to be towed back to the Horseshoe harbor.

Overhaul Resolute for the Coming Races

Preparations for the coming of the defender of the America's cup started at Sandy Hook, N. J., today. A busy mooring to which Resolute will be anchored in the Horseshoe was put down near the spot where Sir Thomas Lipton's trim green sloops are riding the waves. Headquarters will be established at the dock for Resolute's crew.

A report that the Vanitie will be taken to Jacobs Shipyard and put in drydock was denied today. It is stated, according to present plans, will proceed to Sandy Hook and act as trial horse for the Resolute in tuning up for the big races.

The defender was hauled out on the ways at the Horseshoe yards, Bristol, R. I., Sunday afternoon, and will be given a thorough overhauling before sailing for the scene of the big races, the latter part of the week. The Resolute is a sport a brand new set of Ratsey sails.

FLYNN NEXT TO TAKE CRACK AT YOUNG KLOBY

Paddy Flynn, Everett welterweight, will be the next to try to stop the victorious surge of Young Kloby, Jack Lawlor, one of the best lightweights in the country, proved no match for the Y. D. champion at Lawrence Saturday. Flynn will make an attempt next Saturday afternoon to perform the feat when he faces Kloby for Lawlor. There are a lot of fans who believe that Flynn has a fine chance to beat Kloby. For one thing he will weigh as much as the Lawrence idol. It will be a strange sight to see Kloby enter a ring with a man who is not 10 pounds or more lighter than himself. Flynn can also punch as hard as Kloby, while he is a better boxer than the pride of the Merrimac Valley. Maybe there wouldn't be a flock of Joy out in Everett if Flynn punches his way to victory in as impressive style as Charley Brickley used to boot his football elevens to gridiron glory.

NICKALLS, YALE COACH, RETURNS TO ENGLAND

Guy Nickalls, coach of the Yale crews, is on the high seas today bound for England. He hopes to arrive there in time to see his son row in the Eton crew, in the race of the year. Nickalls was disappointed over the result of the varsity race with Harvard on the Charles but gave the Crimson full credit for its triumph.

It is not certain that Nicholls will return to coach at Yale next Fall.

EAST HAS LEAD IN THE TRIALS

Franklin Field Competition Brings Out Best Marks in Eight of Nineteen Events

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

By a one-event plurality over the Far West, the track and field athletes of the East, meeting in the Eastern Olympic tryouts at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, achieved highest sectional honors, and although this margin is small it can be assumed with reasonable safety that this section will furnish the largest contribution to the makeup of the United States Olympic team for the Seventh Olympiad at Antwerp, Belgium.

Eastern performers made the best marks in eight of the nineteen events; Far Westerners gained the edge in seven; Mid Westerners in four, while not one of the Southerners to perform in Saturday's meets was able even to equal the highest mark in any of the contests.

Earl Eby in the half-mile, Earl Johnson in the 10,000-metre run, Willie Plant in the 3,000-metre walk, Dick Landon in the high jump, Pat Mcdonald in both the shot-put and 56-pound weight-throw, Pat Ryan in the hammer-throw, and Jack Lincoln in the javelin event were the Easterners to score the highest marks in the simultaneous sectional tryouts staged Saturday at Philadelphia, Chicago, Pasadena and New Orleans.

But One World's Record Beaten at Trials

The Far Westerners to achieve best marks were Charley Paddock in the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes, George Shiller in the quarter-mile, Charley Hunter in the 3,000-metre run, Bill Yount in the high hurdles, Jack Norton in the 440-yard hurdles, and Bill Bartlett in the discus. The Mid Westerners were Joie Ray in the mile run, Sol Butler in the broad jump, Frank Foss in the pole vault, and Dan Ahern in the hop, step and jump.

Only one world's record was surpassed in the course of the four-sectional meets. That came in the 440-yard hurdles at the Pasadena trials when Jack Norton covered the distance in 54 1-5 seconds, which is two-fifths of a second under Bill Meadly's record time made at the Harvard stadium in 1917. Incidentally Meadly's record was equaled in that same event, both at Philadelphia and at New Orleans, but in the former case, owing to Beach, the winner, fouled the second last hurdle, his mark will not count in the official records.

Despite the absence of broken records, however, all meets uncovered sterling performances and scarcely any event passed in which the existing world's record was not threatened.

TAD'S TIDBITS

"You Tell 'Em"—Wilde Has Got Them All Tamed

"You tell 'em." This hasn't got anything to do with the high price of prescriptions or the Democratic talk fest at San Francisco. It's merely Tad's new catch phrase which has taken the country by storm, much like ouija boards and presidential candidates. Everybody is making them up when not busy preparing to receive visitors in the cellar. Send in your best one—a "you tell 'em" phrase, not the way to make the stuff that furnished the mirth in the old days. Write to "You Tell 'Em" Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

THE GREATEST FIGHTER HE EVER SAW

Dear Tad—You've been buzzed so much with the "GREATEST Fighter" problem that I thought, in this era of prohibition to scamper a few remarks of my own on the parchment.

Listen: Where's the eighteen-year-old kid nowadays fighting twenty-round battles to a decision? Where's the kid having won a dozen twenty-round bouts before he passed the twentieth milestone?

Let me whisper you the name of the world's GREATEST FIGHTER, LES DAROY—peace to his ashes. Just imagine his THIRD ring battle was a twenty-round affair with Bill Hanan, in West Maitland, Australia. Les stopped him in eighteen rounds. This quarrel took place on March 15, 1913, when Les was only eighteen years of age.

Les knocked out Mick King in ten rounds, licked Eddie McGoorty in fifteen, KnoKed Billy Murray cold in six; Fred Dyer in four; beat Jimmy Clabby and Jeff Smith. All this happened while Les was in his teens. Like Robert Emmet, had Les lived, history—pugilistic history at least—would have been different. But me down for a vote for my lamented frend, Les Darcy, as the greatest exponent of the fistic art.

Yours till all cellars are damp, LIAM O'SHEA.

Gunboat Smith Still Running Second

The famous "Gooner" Smith lost another four-round decision in Frisco the other night to a small colored gent by the name of Lee Anderson. Smith just finished reading his new set of Mark Twain and ran across a chunk of Mark's advice, which was, "IF YOU CAN'T BE GOOD, BE CAREFUL." The "Gooner," knowing that he wasn't GOOD, just folded himself up for three rounds in a very careful manner.

He lost by half a mile.

Canada Cal's Chirps

Our Mary says she suffered nine years from Owen Moore. We also have suffered from owin' more than we could pay. But not nine years. The statute of limitations released us after six years, and then we sprout out debts.

"Let me but get him once upon the hip," hissed Shylock, "and I'll——" "You'll what?" asked Gratiano. "I'll take every drop he has in the bottle," concluded Shylock. "Take, ratser, thy pound of flesh," said Gratiano, in horror at the awful threat.

You tell 'em, Spider, I gotta fly.

"I saw a black cat this morning. That means bad luck"

"Does it? Well, when I woke up this morning I saw a pink elephant at the foot of the bed. What kind of luck is that?"

"Oh, to see a pink elephant means you've recently had good luck—but, say, where didja get it?"

HUMOR IN THE HEADLINES

"Divorce Suit Will Be Pressed."
Cleaned and pressed, no doubt.

"Message Found in a Bottle."
One of them cheering spirit messages, perhaps.

"Ultimatum Is Sent to Sonora."
No, it isn't a note from one neighbor to another threatening reprisals with a Jazzanola.

You tell 'em, Tree, you're due to leave soon.

Thirsty days hath September, April, June and November; all the rest are thirsty, too, except for those who have home brew; but election coming one year in four, next year perhaps we may get more.

RED SOX ENJOY NEEDED REST

Slaughter by Yankees in Recent Series Upsets All Manager Barrow's Hopes

New York, June 28.—The Red Sox today enjoyed a welcome rest period. Thrice welcome to the pitchers, who have been getting more than their share of thumping during the past fortnight.

In the Sunday game on the Polo Grounds, Allan Russell got his in the eighth inning. Up to that session Barrow's per incumbent had been going along nicely and to all appearance had the game well in hand.

Then "Murderers' Row" proved its right to its title, and things began to look pretty black for Allan, and one time he thought the grandstand was going to tumble in on him, but it was only Ruth letting go a triple. Six hits were jammed into the inning by the Yankees, among the six being Ruth's triple and doubles by Ward and Meusel. Peck, Pepp and Ryan got the hit singles.

Never in the history of the Yanks did a New York crowd do such howling for a despondent pitcher. When Edward Ruth's triple could be heard over in Jersey and lasted for ten minutes they were sure strong for the once despised Yanks now. Pandemonium let loose in the stands. Though the grandstand again filled up long before the start of the play. It was so hot that thousands turned back rather than go into the bleachers. However, it went above 20,000, and Frazee's shrek from the series will be almost as big as the one he got for Dave.

Mays was better than usual, though the scores didn't show it. The Red Sox pitcher runs were made with the aid of only two hits. In one inning the Yankees hammered three errors with two outs, and Vitt hit a homer with two on. This drive just barely landed in the stand. It cleared the wall by inches, and was fair by inches.

LASKER GIVES UP CHESS TITLE TO CAPABLANCA

Amsterdam, June 28.—Dr. Emanuel Lasker has made known his intention to give up his title of world champion chess player to Jose Capablanca, the Cuban expert, instead of playing a match with him, and arranged in a letter written to Capablanca, he said:

"From various facts I must infer that the chess world does not like the conditions of our agreement. I cannot play the match, knowing that the prizes are widely unpopular. I therefore resign the title of world's champion in your favor. You have earned the title, not by the formality of a challenge, but by your brilliant mastery. In your further career I wish you much success."

EAYRS GINGERS UP BRAVES

Stallings Should Keep This Youngster in Out Field All Time

If Boss Stallings wants the Braves to keep on winning, it he surely does, he might well take his cue from recent events and keep Eddie Eayrs in the lineup regularly. Whatever may be the ability of the much-fiddle displacer in the outfield, the tribesmen seem to develop a trifle more "pep" and go after their opponents in a more whole-hearted fashion than they do on other occasions.

Peculiar game this baseball. A team will be away off in its stride, apparently unable to win a game unless the opposition obligingly goes to the bat hands them the victory on the traditional silver platter, then the manager feels that nothing on can do will harm the team, takes a man who has been warming the bench for the better part of the year and infects him into the fray. A sudden change comes over the entire troupe. They perk up, begin to take interest in their daily toil and begin winning. What a man can say.

Today was a sort of half-holiday for the bonding Braves, that is, but one game was played between them and their ancient rivals, the Brooklyn Dodgers. As the latter are now traveling in their best form just now, the Tribesmen felt confident that they would annex another victory back of the pitching of Hugh Mcguillan, who was slated to face Rudolph did not feel exactly fit for the fray.

Dick's sore shoulder is coming around quite slowly than was anticipated, and though he could pitch in the emergency demanded, both he and Manager Stallings figure a week's more rest will do the old "wonder" a world of good.

While the little Master is likely to pitch a game some day this week, it is doubtful if he will be called upon to do much before the Braves start on their second swing through the West. Cincinnati in July where the Tribe opens on the 4th and Rudolph will certainly be called on to toss one of the games against the slipping world champions.

Manager Wilbert Robinson, who doesn't relish defeat any more than George T. Stallings does, sent Al Mamaux to the mound in hope of repeating the victory of the Braves. The Babe has been pitching a good brand of baseball recently, but not enough as the quality of his hurling has deserved.

MAN O' WAR ENTERED IN CANADIAN DERBY, JULY 5

Buffalo, June 28.—The announcement that the Niagara Racing Association will stage the Dominion Derby, a purse of $7,500, an average of $1,500, or $750 over the Kentucky classic, the Latonia Derby, and that it will give the world's greatest program ever presented in Canada is attracting much attention in racing circles here, and it is anticipated that the meeting that will open at Fort Erie July 5 is to be a big success.

Man o' War, America's premier thoroughbred, is entered in the Canadian Derby, to run on the fifth day, Thursday, July 8, and the association has announced that Glen Riddle Stable will ship him here for the event.

Fort Erie has accommodations for more horses than any track in Canada, and there will be room for every

TWO N. E. SWIMMING RACES ON MONDAY

Competition will be keen in two New England championship events in the annual amateur swimming races to be held on the Charles River basin in the city of Boston. The 1-mile races will be for the 220-yards and one-mile events, for which championship medals will be awarded.

The other events for registered amateurs are handicap affairs in the form of relay races. Races for boys will be 50 yards for novices and 100 yards handicap. Girls' events will be 50 yards for novices, 50 yards handicap and one mile.

The meet will close today afternoon with William H. Caddy, who may be coached at St. Joseph's, T. A. Society, No. 95, Charlestown, Mass.

N. E. PROS TO PLAY ON WANNAMOISETT LINKS

The qualifying round of the New England Division of the P. G. A. will be conducted on the Wannamoisett Country Club's links at Rumford, R. I., within the next two weeks to determine the three players who will represent New England in the national championship of the association in Chicago about the middle of August. A preliminary qualifying meeting of pros will come about three or four days after the national open.

What Has Happened So Far

The father of little Stephanie Quest, disowned by his family, becoming a drug addict, pays no attention to the child. Her mother sinks with the father, and the girl is left to wander the streets without knowing the meaning of the word home. She is taken in by a poor workman, who already has a large family. Jim Cleland, son of John Cleland, millionaire art collector, goes home to New York from school for the Christmas holidays. They have a happy time together, and the father sees the lad off for school again. Then he reads of some cases of needy children.

By Robert W. Chambers,

"CASE 113. The father, consumptive and unable to work; the mother still weak from childbirth; the only other wage earner a daughter aged sixteen, under arrest; four little children dependent. Seventy dollars will tide them over until the mother can recover and resume her wage-earning, which, with the daughter's assistance, will be sufficient to keep the family together. Three of the children are defectives, the oldest sister, a cash-girl, has been arrested and held as a witness for attending, at her mother's request, a clinic conducted by people advocating birth-control, and the three dollars a week which she brought to the family has been stopped indefinitely."

"Case 113. For this case no money at all has been received so far. It is the case of a little child, Stephanie Quest, left an orphan by the death or suicide of both drug-addicted parents, and taken into the family of a kindly German carpenter two years ago. It is the first permanent shelter the child has ever known, the first kindness ever offered her, the first time she has ever had sufficient nourishment in all her eleven years of life. Now she is in danger of losing the only home she has ever had. Stephanie is a pretty, delicate, winsome and engaging little creature of eleven, whose only experience with life had been savage cruelty, gross neglect, filth and immemorial starvation until the carpenter took her into his own too numerous family, and his wife cared for her as though she were their own child. Now they have five children of their own, and the wife is soon to have another baby. Low wages, irregular employment, the constantly increasing cost of living, now made it impossible for them to feed and clothe an extra child.

"They are fond of the little girl; they are willing to keep and care for her if $50 could be contributed toward her support. But if this can be not forthcoming, little Stephanie will have to go to an institution.

A Child Described

"The child is now physically healthy. She is of a winning personality, but somewhat impulsive, unruly and wilful at times, and it would be far better for her future welfare to continue to live with these sober, kindly, honest people who love her than to be sent to an orphanage."

"Case No. 129. A very old man, desperately poor and ill and entirely——"

John Cleland dropped the paper suddenly across his knees. A fierce distaste for suffering, an abrupt disinclination for such details checked further perusal.

"Damnation!" he muttered, fumbling for another cigar.

His charities already had been attended to for the year. That portion of his income devoted to such things was now entirely used up. But he had remained uneasily aware that the portion reserved for further acquisition of Americana—books, prints, pictures, early American silver, porcelain, furniture—was still intact for the new year now beginning.

That was his only refuge from loneliness and the ever-living grief—the plodding hunt for such things and the study connected with this pursuit. Except for his son—his ruling passion—he had no other interest now that his wife was dead—nothing that particularly mattered to him in life except this collecting of Americana.

And now his son had gone away again. The day had to be filled—filled rather quickly, too, for the parting still hurt cruelly, and with a dull persistence that he had not yet shaken off. He must busy himself with something. He'd go out again presently and mouse about among musty stacks of furniture "in the rough." Then he's prawl through auction rooms and screw a jeweller's glass into his right eye and pore over mezzotints.

Something of Ponder

He allowed himself just so much as to spend on Americana; just so much to spend on his establishment, so much to invest, so much to give in charity.

"Damnation!" he repeated aloud.

It was the last morning of the exhibition at the Christensen Galleries of early American furniture. That afternoon the sale was to begin. He had not had time for preliminary investigation. He disliked the importance of the collection; knew that his friends would be there in force, and hated the thought of being cut out by chance.

Turning the leaves of his newspaper for the advertisement, he found himself again confronted by the columns under the direful "Hundred Neediest Cases." And against every inclination he reread the details of Case 113.

Odd, he thought to himself angrily, that there was nobody in the city to contribute the few dollars necessary to help this girl. The case in question required only fifty dollars. Fifty dollars meant a home, possibly moral salvation, to this child with her winning disposition and unruly ways.

He read the details again, more irritated than ever, yet grimly interested to note that, as usual, it is the very poor with many burdens who help the poor. This carpenter, living probably in a tenement, with a wife, an unborn baby, and a herd of squalling children to support, had still found room for another little waif, whose drug-sodden parents had been kind to her only by dying.

John Cleland turned the page, searched for the advertisement of the Christensen galleries, discovered it, read it carefully. There were some fine old prints advertised to be sold. His hated rivals would be there—beloved friends, yet hated rivals in the endless battle for bargains in antiquities.

When he got into his car a few minutes later, he told the chauffeur to drive to Christensen's and drive fast. Half way there, he signalled and spoke through the tube:

"Where is the United Charities Building? Where? Well, drive there first."

"Damn!" he muttered, readjusting himself in the corner under the lynx robe.

CHAPTER II.

"WOULD you care to go there and see the child for yourself, Mr. Cleland? A few moments might give you a much clearer idea of her than all that I have told you," suggested the capable young woman to whom he had been turned over in that vast labyrinth of offices tenemented by the "United Charities Organizations of Manhattan and the Four Boroughs, Inc."

John Cleland signed the check which he had filled in, laid it on the desk, closed his check book and shook his head.

"I'm a busy man," he said, briefly.

"Oh, I'm sorry! I wish you had time to see her for a moment. You may obtain permission through the Manhattan Charities Concern, a separate organization, which turns over certain cases to the excellent child-placing agency connected with our corporation."

"Thank you, I haven't time."

"Mr. Chiltern Grismer would be the best man to see—if you had time."

"Thank you"

There was a chilly silence. Cleland stood frowning at space, wrapped in gloomy preoccupation.

"But," added the capable young woman, wistfully, "if you are so busy that you have no time to spare for this case personally"—

"I have time," snapped Cleland, turning red. For the man was burdened with the inconvenient honesty of his race—a sort of tactless truthfulness which characterized all Clelands. He said:

"When I informed you that I'm a busy man I evidently, but unintentionally, misled you. I'm not in business. I have time." I simply don't wish to go into the slums to see somebody's perfectly strange offspring."

The amazed young woman listened, hesitated, then threw back her pretty head and laughed.

"Mr. Cleland, your frankness is most refreshing. Certainly there is no necessity for you to go if you don't wish to. The little girl will be most grateful to you for this generous check, and happy to be relieved of the haunting terror that has made her almost ill at the prospect of an orphanage.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Hackett

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

HACKETT
VARIATIONS—Acker.
RACIAL ORIGIN—Anglo-Saxon.
SOURCE—A given name.

HACKETT is one of those ancient Anglo-Saxon names which is far from being what it seems, having gone through a tremendous degree of change since the early days of the Christian era.

From the very close connection which exists between so many names and the words from which they took their origin you would feel justified in assuming that the original Hackett was one who hacked something for some purpose or other, that possibly he was a great warrior, with a reputation for dispensing rough treatment to his enemies. But nothing could be further from the truth.

The source of the name, on the contrary, appears to have been a very peaceful one, though just which of two possibilities it is likely to remain for all time a question for conjecture. It came originally either from the Anglo-Saxon word for temple, or that for fairy. The more probable explanation is that it came from one in one case and from the other in another. In any event the name was Ealhere. The two possible sources are "ealh," a temple, and "aelh," a fairy.

When the Normans came to England their Latinized tongues were unable to twist around the pronunciation of Aelhere or Ealhere, and they corrupted it to Aucher, from which it finally developed into Acker and Ackett and Hackett.

To Gilmanton, England, the ancestry of the first American Hackett, William Henry Young Hackett, is traced. This name appears in America, chiefly in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, records telling us that an English branch of the family emigrated to America in 1630.

The name is distinguished both in England and the newer country. It appears in 1273 on the Hundred Rolls of Battle Abbey.

The American Hacketts settled and were well known and respected citizens of Salisbury, Mass., Exeter, N. H., Taunton and other towns nearby. There was seldom a year in colonial and post-Revolutionary days in which a William, John or Richard Hackett did not hold some official position in connection with his home town.

They were farmers, sea captains, master builders and shipwrights, and one of them, a gallant fighter, Captain William Hackett, in a ship and port dispute in New York, had the honor of being complainant in the first court where trial by jury was held. He presented to the jury fourteen reasons why his claim should be allowed. Record says that the jury was overpowered with the excellence of his arguments.

HE turned back to the dining room.

"Good-night, Cynthia," he said, "since I cannot be of any assistance to you, I'm going."

Then he took his departure.

"It has been a lovely affair, hasn't it?" Cynthia commented as she told her niece good-night at the door of her room.

"Yes—lovely," the girl forced herself to say. "I thank you for all the trouble you went to to make it a success, Auntie."

"Oh, that's all right! He a good girl—that's all the reward I want," Miss Cynthia replied briskly. "And now go to bed."

Barbara took off her dress, put on a wrapper and, seating herself at her desk, drew out a sheet of note paper and wrote rapidly.

"Dear Robert: This note is perhaps unnecessary. But I write it to ask you to forget the silly things I did when you were here last. I should not have done them. I see that now. This requires no answer. I would rather not have you answer it. Sincerely, Barbara Paige."

"I will take it out in the morning and mail it myself," she whispered. "After the first mail has arrived. That will give him one more chance. Yet, even if a letter came from him, I must send this. Everything's over now. All the same," with a dry sob, "I'm going to wait for one more mail."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

BUT Wednesday morning's mail brought no letter from Robert Elliot for Barbara Paige.

Cynthia knew that it would not. Had she not disposed of an epistle from this young man late last evening? Even a hardent lover would not write so soon again.

She was tired after the long drive and picnic, and did not descend to the breakfast-room as early as was her custom. She and her niece appeared below-stairs at the same time.

"I am going into the kitchen to speak with Della," the spinster remarked. "Barbara, my dear, look over the mail and put your uncle's letters at his place."

Barbara obeyed eagerly, then, with a smothered sigh of disappointment, turned to say good morning to her uncle as he entered the room.

When breakfast was over, and she had finished her usual household tasks, she slipped into the hand-bag the letter she had written last night, and went out to mail it. She had meant to drop it into the post-box at the corner, but she felt a feverish haste to get it off, so walked all the way down to the post-office, where she deposited it in the box for out-of-town letters.

"When will something mailed now for New York leave here?" she inquired of the clerk at the stamp-window.

The man glanced at the clock. "On the 11 o'clock train," he answered.

She almost wished that she had attached a special delivery stamp to the envelope that Robert might receive her message tonight. But that would have been ridiculous, although she was in a hurry to have him know the worst.

Never mind. Her note would reach him in the first mail tomorrow morning.

She pictured to herself how he would open and read it. She was conscious of a pang of pity, for she remembered with a painful vividness how he had looked on Saturday evening when he told her that he loved her.

But a moment later she was remembering that he had not sent her a line except a miserable postcard written, perhaps, on the train on his way to town, when he had nothing else to occupy his time. And he had concealed from her the fact that he had lingered at Mary Chambers's home on Sunday, when he might have been with her, Barbara Paige!

A Sad Lecture.

He was a conscienceless flirt! Well, if he flattered himself that he had been making a fool of her she would convince him that it had been only a flirtation on her part, too!

She hated to have him suppose that she was the kind of girl who would allow a man to kiss her, to hold her in his arms—just for the sake of flirting. But she would rather have him think that—disgusting as it was—than to believe that he was hurting her, that she had loved him when he had only been amusing himself with her. Yes—she would show him!

How? There was only one way—and that was through John Brandon.

Anyhow, even if Robert had loved her, she would have had to dismiss him from her life. She owed it to those who had supported her and cared for her all these years. Her duty was plain in any case. She would not put her hand to the plow and look back.

Her aunt met her in the hall as she entered the house.

"Where have you been, Barbara?" she inquired. "I did not know you were going out."

"I only wanted to go a little way—as far as the corner—but then went on farther," the girl evaded.

She looked tired, and Cynthia forbore to question her further. She would not coerce her in insignificant matters.

"A boy came for you just now," with a meaning smile. "I put it in your room. I thought perhaps you would rather open it up there. It is from the nicest man you know."

A Gift From Brandon

The box was on the table near her window, and Barbara closed her door before removing the string and cover. It was from the fashionable florist in Summerfield, and contained a huge bunch of English violets. The girl buried her face in their cool fragrance.

"Oh, how sweet they are!" she whispered. "They actually kill the scent of the honeysuckle as long as I hold them very close like this to my face."

Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MY Daughter, what is the most dangerous moment of a man's life?

Verily, verily, it is that moment, after a love-affair, when he thinketh himself most impregnable and most immune!

Lo, velvet is soft to the fingers, and the cooing of doves to the ear, but the heart of a discarded lover is the softest and most impressionable thing in all the world.

And melted tar is as granite, beside one who cryeth, "Never again!"

Now, a youth came unto me, saying:

"Behold, I am DONE with love, and women are henceforth but danger signals on the path of life for me!

"For the One Woman hath cast me off, and shattered mine illusions.

"And henceforth my middle name shall be 'Woman Hater'!

"Yea, I shall live and die a BACHELOR!"

Then I lifted my hands and admonished him, crying:

"My Son, my Son, beware!

"Oh, watch thy step, my Son!

"For thou walkest upon the brink of Marriage, and knowest it not!

"Thou art as one that goeth blindfolded amidst automobiles and uncovered manholes. Behold, in that moment, whensoever a man forswareth a thing, whether it be tobacco, or folly, or matrimony, or a woman, there is silvery laughter throughout Gehenna. For lo, it hath become his pet TEMPTATION!

"Therefore, beware! For thou art a shorn lamb prepared for the sacrifice! Yea, in the love-chase thou art an Easy Mark!"

But he mocked me with his ha-has, and went his way rejoicing.

And it came to pass, after three months, that I received a message graven upon white parchment, announcing his WEDDING.

Go to, my Daughter! Haven't not said that a man who hath been thrown over, landeth always upon his KNEES—to another woman?

For no man is ripe for matrimony until his heart hath been broken at least once; and no man's heart was ever so shattered that it could not be repaired and put in working condition within a month.

And, peradventure, though she knoweth it not, every wife is a Consolation Prize, and every husband is a Discard.

But the woman who throweth a man over is a philanthropist and an angel in disguise.

Yea, without her, there would be no marrying nor giving in marriage, and the nations would perish, and the earth be peopled with aphisiers and old bachelors.

For the masculine heart which hath never been broken is harder than the conscience of a newsboy, colder than yesterday's kiss, and less impressionable than a boarding-house steak.

But a "bruised heart" is softer than asparagus tips, and tenderer than the words of a John McCormack ballade.

Go to! Love is like unto a springboard which, when it bounceth a man off, plungeth him in deeper than ever!

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

IT is easy enough to forget paying up when a fellow's in debt,
And forgetting is a snap when Friend Wife tells a chap what number of thread he must get.
And day there are letters to mail then my memory's certain to fail; and just ask any runt that's attempted this stunt—they will all tell the same sort of tale. I forget when my mealtime draws nigh and I oft let the noon hour roll by when I'm deep in a chat of the guy at the bat or the latest political pie. Yes, my memory is on the bum when I am sent shopping from home; 'tis a pitiful thing but I must have a string as first aid decorating my thumb. Friend Wife sends me to bring home a frock, but I'm likely to tote back a clock; then the language I hear does not add to my cheer and the neighbors indeed get a shock. Nightly putting the cat out the door has long been a regular chore, but I'll have to admit I am no good at it and the feline awakes me at four. Yes, forgetting such things is no trick, and the way that I do it is slick, but I want to know why I can never get by with the style of forgetting I'd pick. When from toothache I'm having a fit, why can't I forget about it? for the dentist I see simply chortles with glee, as he lays out his murderous kit. Now, forgetting should be a breeze. Each of a subject for college to teach; thus the skills we'd apply to each glum memory that ever came into our reach. Any poor man forgets to meet trains, but think of forgetting your pains, or your long-standing awe of your mother-in-law; for such feats a chap needs to have brains.

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Feel Right

It is a mistake to continually dose yourself with harsh, irritating pills, calomel, oil, purges and cathartics that force bowel action. It weakens the bowels and liver and makes constipation seem necessary.

Why don't you begin right today to regain your constitution and get your system in such shape that daily purging will be unnecessary? You can do so if you get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a week or so. NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs—promotes good digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, hearty appetite, straightens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best.

Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and prove this. It is the best bowel medicine that you can use and costs only 25c per box, containing enough to last twenty-five days. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

Stocks Weak in New York; Call Money 9%; Markets Are Dull

STEEL AND OIL ISSUES RECEDE

Barrett Shows Largest Forenoon Loss Among the Leaders: Equipments Are Weak

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, lowest prices being quoted in the second hour. Barrett showed the largest loss among leaders. Steels, oils and equipments receded as groups. U. S. Steel showed more than a point loss late in the forenoon. The market was very dull, first-hour transactions totalling less than 400 shares. Chili issue was weak at 9 per cent. There was but little change in foreign exchange at the opening, quotations being demand sterling $3.96½, francs 12.68 to the dollar, lire 16.22 to the dollar and marks 2.72.

Among weak stocks were Allis Chalmers, Baldwin, Bethlehem, Republic Iron & Steel, Inspiration Copper, Pressed Steels, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Texas & Pacific, Middle States, National Aniline, Retail Stores, Tobacco Products, Industrial Alcohol, Reading, Rock Island and Southern Pacific. Ware off from one to more than two points. At the lowest, Barrett showed more than five points decline.

STOCKS HAD WEAK OPENING.

The market was weak at the opening, losses exceeding gains in the ratio of about three to one. Trading was of small volume and the price range narrow. Attendance at the brokers' houses was unusually small for Monday, and the public appeared to be apathetic. Many traders had extended their week-end outing and did not appear. Over Sunday buying was negligible. Attention was focussed upon the San Francisco convention. All initial gains were fractional, but within a few minutes Famous Players and Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil had managed to struggle a point upward. Among weakest issues at the outset were American Locomotive, Barrett, Crucible and Delaware and Hudson. They dropped from one to more than two points. Delaware and Hudson lost all of its Saturday gain and more besides. The trend was downward during the first hour.

BANK STATEMENT DISAPPOINTING.

Weakness of the stock market was partly based upon the disappointment over the Federal reserve banking system report. It showed for Twelve institutions that the ratio of initial reserves to net deposit and Federal reserve note liabilities combined is 47.5 per cent, as compared with 45.5 per cent. for the week before. An increase in the reserve ratio had been looked for by many investors. Gold reserves decreased $32,434,235, and total reserves decreased $32,727,235. The New York Clearing House statement showed an increase in surplus reserve of $11,905,250, but some analysts claimed this was due to borrowing from the Federal reserve bank. The reserve ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was 39.2 per cent. against 42.5 last week. Boston made the best showing of all, its ratio being 56.7 percent.

LAWRENCE CLERKS PARADE TO ENCOURAGE PICKETS

Lawrence, June 28.—Members of the Retail Clerks' Association rallied to the support of the organization picketing in the shopping district Saturday night in the vicinity of stores which refused to close at 9:30 o'clock, the union closing hour. Officers of the association led the parade of shop girls and salesmen peacefully along Essex street. The protest march was carried out as a means of showing the merchants who granted the union hours that the clerks were behind them and would not allow stores not agreeing to close the benefit of sales after the closing hour.

CARSON HILL IS LOCAL LEADER

Boston Market Irregular, but Has a Heavy Tone; Curb Issues Advance

The Boston market had a dull opening, but few issues changing hands during the first hour and many being weak in without price alteration. Trading was as listless as on Saturday, which was the dullest two-hour session in nearly four months. The price movement was irregular, but the tone became weaker during the morning, reflecting to a slight extent the trend in New York. Edison advanced a point in the first hour and Great Northern a point and a half. But Carson Hill, which was weak, was the early feature. It opened with a fractional gain, but was soon showing nearly two points loss.

Among issues to sustain fractional losses were Atlantic Coast Line, Boston Elevated, Massachusetts Gas, Ventura, Libby and North Butte. Steels were weak, Bethlehem preferred, Cluett Peabody, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Texas & Pacific, Middle States, National Aniline, Retail Stores, Tobacco Products, Industrial Alcohol, Reading, Rock Island and Southern Pacific. Ware off from one to more than two points. At the lowest, Barrett showed more than five points decline.

STOCKS HAD WEAK OPENING.

The market was weak at the opening, losses exceeding gains in the ratio of about three to one. Trading was of small volume and the price range narrow. Attendance at the brokers' houses was unusually small for Monday, and the public appeared to be apathetic. Many traders had extended their week-end outing and did not appear. Over Sunday buying was negligible. Attention was focussed upon the San Francisco convention. All initial gains were fractional, but within a few minutes Famous Players and Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil had managed to struggle a point upward. Among weakest issues at the outset were American Locomotive, Barrett, Crucible and Delaware and Hudson. They dropped from one to more than two points. Delaware and Hudson lost all of its Saturday gain and more besides. The trend was downward during the first hour.

BANK STATEMENT DISAPPOINTING.

Weakness of the stock market was partly based upon the disappointment over the Federal reserve banking system report. It showed for Twelve institutions that the ratio of initial reserves to net deposit and Federal reserve note liabilities combined is 47.5 per cent, as compared with 45.5 per cent. for the week before. An increase in the reserve ratio had been looked for by many investors. Gold reserves decreased $32,434,235, and total reserves decreased $32,727,235. The New York Clearing House statement showed an increase in surplus reserve of $11,905,250, but some analysts claimed this was due to borrowing from the Federal reserve bank. The reserve ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was 39.2 per cent. against 42.5 last week. Boston made the best showing of all, its ratio being 56.7 percent.

Three anonymous benefactors have joined in the presentation to the Harvard Astronomical Laboratory of a new observatory, the Boyden Station, and an additional gift of a small model of a ship stabilizer by Elmer A. Sperry, has enabled the laboratory to the most complete equipment available for instruction in navigation and nautical astronomy. Mr. Sperry will come to Harvard in the Autumn to talk on astronomy.

CHIROPODIST BREAKS LEG IN FALL AT HIS OFFICE

Thornton Magauann, a chiropodist in the Bethesda building, South Boston, was severely injured when he fell 20 feet to the sidewalk in an attempt to reach his office, the door of which was locked, by crawling along the coping of the building to one of the office windows.

He is at the City Hospital suffering from a fracture of both bones in his left leg.

"GREEN" PICKEREL IS WAR VETERAN'S PRIZE

Oneco, Conn., June 28.—"Minnt" Bowker, a World War Veteran, has taken the prize as a fisherman, landing a "green" pickerel that weighed a trifle more than 5 pounds. Green pickerel are very scarce, according to Izaak Walton's disciples in this section. They are found only in the rivers of Alaska, and how this one reached here is a mystery.

Vast Sugar Operations

The American Sugar Refining Co. is conducting operations on a large scale and it is estimated that it will refine three billion pounds of sugar this year, its possible daily refinery output at various cities being in pounds. Boston, 1,000,000; Brooklyn 4,000,000 to 4,500,000; Jersey City, 1,-750,000 to 2,000,000; Philadelphia 3,-500,000; Chalmette, 2,000,000, and Revere, 2,000,000. The company has 10,000 employes on its staff, last year paid out $8,500,000 to labor alone.

High Prices Will Continue

In the opinion of Commissioner Royal Meeker of the Department of Labor and Statistics, there is no prospect that food and clothing prices will decrease this year. He said at Washington that he looks for an increase in prices until there is a decrease of currency in circulation or an increase in the goods exchanged for currency.

A First National Booklet

The First National Bank of Boston has published an instructive booklet on wool. Boston is the market for this commodity, as about 70 per cent of the amount imported comes through this port. Nearly half of such receipts are financed through this banking institution. James Phelan, formerly of the First National staff wrote the book.

FIND HUGE STILL IN HAVERHILL

Half Barrel of Moonshine Seized; Chemist Is Arrested

Haverhill, June 28.—Federal enforcement officers arrested Braulio Ias Coundkaros a chemist of No. 159 Grove street, charged with violating the Volstead act. He is under bail of $500 to appear before United States Commissioner Hayes in Boston.

On a tip, the officers raided the Coundkaros home and found a small cellar in which they allege there was an elaborately equipped distillery of greater value than any other yet confiscated in New England, including a huge copper boiler, capable of holding a barrel, copper coils and cooling apparatus.

The officers seized ten gallons of liquor in a tank, one-half barrel of moonshine, five-gallon jugs filled with moonshine of the best quality, fifty barrels, kegs and jugs and distilling apparatus.

In raiding the seizure the officers believe they have shut off one of the principal sources of illicit liquors in Haverhill.

Coundkaros claims he has been making his concoction for medicinal purposes.

The raiders visited a saloon, formerly conducted by John Dube, and arrested William Harmer. They say Barnes had a pint of moonshine in his pocket when arrested.

Seize Seven Gallons of Moonshine in Pittsfield

Pittsfield, June 28.—Seven gallons of moonshine whiskey, two complete stills and several barrels of mash were discovered by the police in three raids on residents of Turner avenue. Four arrests were made.

The police say John Kolowsky, who is charged with illegal sale has been receiving from $5 to $10 a quart for whiskey that cost him forty cents a quart to manufacture. His wife had part of the still under her bed, it is claimed.

At Martin Flanisky's house the police found two gallons of moonshine and a still, while Adam Redonick had three barrels of mash. John C. Augustine is held for drunkenness and as a material witness.

PROMISE THEIR AID TO POSTAL WORKERS

Manchester, N. H., June 28.—Approval of and promises to back the requests of postoffice employes for an increase in salary was the keynotes of addresses of Senator George H. Moses and Congressman Sherman E. Burroughs and Edward H. Wason at the annual session and outing of the State branches of the National Association of Letter Carriers and the National Federation of Postal Clerks in this city.

Other speakers were J. S. Foley of Boston, member of the national committee which had charge of preparing the bill for an increase to Congress; P. E. Higgins of New York, several vice-presidents of the International Federation of Postoffice Employes, and Postmaster John Wilds.

At a business session of the organization M. J. Ryan of Manchester was elected president of the Federation of Postoffice Clerks. Other officers are: E. C. Lord, Dover, vice president; M. T. Mandell, Penacook, treasurer; W. A. Harkins, Laconia, secretary.

George F. Wentworth of Dover was elected president of the Letter Carriers. The other officers are: H. W. Amidon, Milford, vice president; W. W. Kennedy, Concord, secretary; H. L. Campbell, Manchester, treasurer; H. H. Kew, Hanover, sergeant-at-arms.

NEWSPRINT PAPER SITUATION IMPROVING

Washington, June 28.—The newsprint situation is improving, according to a report made public by the Federal Trade Commission. This improvement is attributed largely to settlement of labor troubles in the mills and consequent increased production.

The report says that for the first time in the history of the United States considerable quantities of print paper and wood pulp are being imported from Canada and European countries in order to relieve the shortage, which a few months ago was acute.

MISS VAUCLAIN, HORSE SHOW EXHIBITOR, WEDS

Philadelphia, June 28.—Miss Constance Marshall Vauclain, who gained prominence in New England as an exhibitor of prize horses, was married to William H. Hamilton in the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr. The Rev. George Calvert Carter, rector of the church, performed the ceremony. Miss Vauclain was driven to and from the service by two of her prize winners, Dragon Fly and Wasp.

The prize stock owned by the bride has received many blue and white ribbons in Massachusetts exhibitions. In recent years she has been among the prominent women exhibitors at the Brockton fair.

Captain John P. Crane, retired leather manufacturer and a former member of the Massachusetts Legislature, is dead at his home, No. 48 Warren street, Woburn.

URGE ACTION ON AMERICANISM

Legion Scores Neglect of Officials to Accept State Aid for Work

At a meeting of the Department Americanism Committee of the American Legion at State headquarters, Chairman Henry J. Ryan submitted the following report:

"There was a bill passed by the Massachusetts General Court more than a year ago, known as chapter 295, under which this State agreed to reimburse any city or town in Massachusetts up to 50 per cent of what it spent on Americanism work. Very few cities or towns of the State have taken advantage of this offer, principally because they are not spending any of their money and are not doing any Americanism work.

SCORES OFFICIALS.

"We find some school officials very willing to co-operate and others who are lukewarm. Some cities and towns are doing absolutely nothing. In other words, Americanism on the part of our public officials in Massachusetts is a 'joke.' There is a great deal to talk and very little real work being done.

"There is a big need for the American Legion to carry on this work and what we want to do is to visit our school boards and our businessmen to the need of not only teaching the English language to the immigrant but to the teaching also of the Constitution of the United States to those who were born here.

"At the coming State Convention this committee will recommend that a salaried officer under the jurisdiction of the Americanism Committee be appointed to devote all his time to this branch of the work, principally because special effort in this line is needed in order to arouse our public officials to their responsibility in that respect.

SPEAKERS VOLUNTEER.

"While we have not met with the success with the Speakers' Bureau that we anticipated, quite a number of the men in the Legion have volunteered to speak in our schools, and we expect before September to have a good, live, speaking bureau that is going to bombard the schools of the State with the ideals of the American Legion."

TRACEY AGAIN ELECTED HEAD OF BAKERS' UNION

J. J. Tracey, president of Bakers' Union No. 7, was re-elected at the annual meeting of the union, held in the Wells Memorial Building. The other officers chosen were: Vice-president, John D. MacDonald; recording secretary, J. J. Dooley; financial secretary and business agent, Patrick J. Leonard; outside business agent, William J. Meade; treasurer, Emil Kaiser; sergeant-at-arms, James Whilden. Murphy; trustees, Charles F. Jones, P. J. Tracey and J. J. Dooley. William J. Meade, Patrick J. Leonard and J. J. Tracey were announced as candidates to represent the delegates at the international convention at Cincinnati. They will be contested at the next meeting on July 19.

MEDFIELD BIRD CLUB TO HOLD RECEPTION

On the afternoon of Wednesday, June 30, the Medfield Bird Club will be at home to their friends from 4 until 7 at the Bartlett-Angell Home for Animals, the Medfield Branch of the Animal Rescue League of Boston. The Rev. George H. Coffin will give a bird talk at 4:30 and tea will be served. In case of rain, this will be postponed to Friday, July 2. Automobiles please enter at Spring street.

CENTRAL AMERICA TO DISCUSS UNION AGAIN

Washington, June 28.—The five Central American republics will begin September 15 the discussion of the union of the five States of the Central American Union. The initiative in this phase of the subject has been taken by San Salvador, whose foreign minister, R. Paredes, has invited delegates from each of the republics to a meeting at San Salvador.

3 DEAD, 2 DYING FROM "JAKEY" AT HARTFORD

Hartford, Ct., June 28.—Three are dead and two are dying here after drinking a combination of wood alcohol and Jamaica ginger. The authorities fear a recurrence of the deathes from drinking wood alcohol similar to last December when many were killed in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

FAMILY OF SEVEN BURNED TO DEATH

Ellwood City, Penn., June 28.—Mrs. James Carlin, and her six children, ranging in age from five weeks to eleven years, were burned to death when fire destroyed their home in the Kraus block on Lawrence avenue. The family occupied the third floor apartment in the building.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

ast Distribution of Wealth Great Problem of Today

A reader of the American writes to us calling attention to present day living conditions in town and country and gives some cheerful and some sombre facts, all important, significant and interesting:

One-half the once tilled land in New York and New England lies idle. The farmer, his sons and daughters earn large pay in the mills, enjoy short hours, no risk, Sundays free.

The list of non-producers of food constantly increases. The food they eat is brought from longer and longer distances year by year. That increases its price, for freights are high. Boys and girls have little interest in the processes by which food is grown. In New England a boy now considers himself degraded if he consents to load manure into a cart and spread it on the ground. A girl conriders it degrading to cook for hired men and to sit at table with them, or to do the family washing.

Yet the men who "won our golden West," the captains of industry and millionaires, were mostly born in poverty and in boyhood toiled on those New England farms.

Girls that helped their mothers keep house, washed dishes, walked miles to a district school to get their education, and afterward taught school to earn pin money before they married—these girls became strong mothers of the great merchants, bankers and directors of corporations in New York and Chicago.

How different the point of view of life when seen from the New England farm today! Our correspondent continues:

Country children observe their fathers who have reached the age of fifty, bent, misshapen, clad in garments of ancient style, awkward in manner, too tired from overwork to be interested in world affairs. Their mothers much the same. They say, "Not for me," and vanish.

Presently they come back from the city for a short visit "home." The younger children observe their straight, alert bodies, easy manner, well-fitting clothes of recent date, listen to their talk, and say to themselves, "Just wait till I get my high school diploma." And away they vanish at eighteen.

It is unthinkable that a high school girl now should help a hard-pressed farm housekeeper during Summer vacation. To seashore or mountain hotel they race, do light work for a few hours, get heavy tips and a glimpse of life new and fascinating to them. After the day's work they can dance, wear pretty clothes and have city beaux.

A farmer of fifty-two years telephoned me last week: "I'm doing the work of four men, and no help to be had. Do you know where I can get anybody to help me hay? I am willing to pay $5 per day and board."

The newspapers tell us of New England mills shutting down, of thirty thousand textile workers laid off. Will they work on New England farms? No, they will sweep piazzas of Summer hotels or carry golf sticks as caddies.

The Governor of New Hamphire has said that in one way Summer tourists have been a curse to that State. They make the farmers and their families feel like peasants.

A neighbor said to me: "Some days I wish I were as old as my father (eighty-six). Then I wouldn't have to work." He is fifty odd.

And so it goes. The world is mad and growing madder. The violent reaction from the war strain and self-denial is still far from spent. From the city we hear of wages of $8 and $10 per day in trades, and all the talk is of fewer hours than eight daily. Such short hours seem unthinkable to us in the country.

I dread next Winter. Mills will shut down, and the spectre of unemployment is ahead of us. Much less food will be raised this Summer, and how are unemployed people to be fed during the cold weather?

Senator Arthur Capper, former Governor of Kansas, says that the same conditions described by our correspondent prevail in the Middle West. Many farmers are cutting down their wheat, corn and potato crops because their sons and farm workers are quitting work and going to town to get "the high wages and short hours of the unions."

City workers all complain, on the other hand, that even with the high wages the high cost of living makes life a burden to them.

The greatest problem today is this: How can we make life more attractive and comfortable on the 6,361,295 farms of the United States for the eighteen million men and women who there produce nearly everything that we eat and wear?

And how can we simplify the distribution of these necessities of life so that the middleman, the speculator, the non-producer, will not take away all the money city toilers can earn?

City's Bad Streets May Drive Autoists to Ferries

The automobilists of New Orleans seem to be undergoing even worse hardships than the motor car drivers of Boston in the matter of bad streets and roads.

There being no good roads open from the city, those who want to go onto outside highways for any extended trip, have to be ferried across Lake Pontchartrain by boat.

It is to be hoped that the streets of Boston will be put into decent shape before it is necessary for those wanting to go to, say, Lynn on the North Shore, or perhaps Cohasset on the South Shore, to have to be ferried across the harbor by boat.

WHEN YOU ARE FORTY-FIVE

Mr. Man of Forty-five or Fifty, don't let the "give-up" feeling master you.

Don't be convinced that you have made your best run in life's race.

Don't feel that it is too late for you to accumulate the sum which you think is necessary to carry you decently to the end of life.

Your mind is good, gets better with use, so do not neglect to think.

You are not infirm and you have no chronic disease to make you uncomfortable, and your life and experience have made you conversant with much which few men know as thoroughly as you do.

Your judgment should be better from your rich experience.

If you have lived as you should you have some friends by this time who would be willing to back you as a safe proposition—and that is worth a lot.

Don't let any man crowd you out and make you take what he leaves.

Use your good sense and your wits and your experience to put yourself on top to stay on top in a position the world cannot shake. You can.

Head up, then—confidence high—mind active—you're safe.

THERE'S A little tailor.
NEAR WHERE I live.
WHO PRESSES clothes.
AND ONCE in a while.
I CARRY a suit.
TO THE door of his shop.
AND LATER on
I GO back again.
AND HE folds the coat.
AND FOLDS the pants.
AND CAREFULLY places them.
ON MY arm.
AND I take them home.
AND YESTERDAY.
I GOT my suit.
AND WAS going home.
AND A woman called.
FROM AN upstairs window.
OF A house I pass.
AND BADE me wait.
WHILE SHE came downstairs.
AND IN a moment.
SHE OPENED the door.
THAT STOOD at the top.
OF THE brownstone steps.
AND SAID to me.
WOULD I come up.
AND, OF course, I did.
AND ALL the while.
IN WONDERMENT.
AS TO what it was.
THAT SHE might want.
AND WHEN I had climbed.
TO THE topmost step.
SHE WANTED to know.
IF I bought old clothes.
AND LOOKED at the suit.
THAT HUNG on my arm.
AND I thought a moment.
AND THEN I said.
IF THE clothes would fit.
AND LOOKED all right.
THAT MAYBE I would
AND ALONG about then.
SHE GOT red in the face.
AND STAMMERED something.
ABOUT A mistake.
AND CLOSED the door.
AND, HOWEVER, I took.
FROM UPSTAIRS down.
I'VE AT least found out.
FROM A close-up view.
I REALLY don't look.
LIKE AN ol' clothes man.
I THANK you.

Letters to the Editor

Noble Citizen Gone

Editor Boston American:

The city of Malden Friday witnessed a scene that was epochal in its history. The passing away of Dr. Charles D. McCarthy, the first of last week, took from us a man whose place it would be impossible to fill. The tokens of respect paid to him Friday by the inhabitants of Malden will long live in my memory. I have been a resident of Malden for more than thirty years, and in my recollection never before has such a sincere tribute been paid to any citizen. During the hours of the funeral all business was suspended and the streets of the city were lined with people, not from idle curiosity, but from heartfelt sympathy.

This great tribute was not paid to Charles D. McCarthy because he had been mayor of the city at one time, or because he was active in the school committee and board of health for many years, but was due to the place that he held in the hearts of all because he had been truly a great man in the real sense of the word great and of the word man. The city of Malden not only has lost a noble citizen, but the State and nation alike have suffered the loss of a man, who by his kindly deeds and acts lived a life like unto God among his fellowmen.

Respectfully yours,
ALFRED DAVENPORT.

Gullible Public

Editor Boston American:

Observers will perceive that the secret of the so-called Anglo-Saxon race success in fooling the rest of the world is the card on which on one side is fair promises and words, while the other side in its true characteristics, broken promises and all the foul tricks of a confirmed, legalized criminal. If you look carefully into the methods of the English government and their fellows of that blood in this country and the world over, for that matter, you will be on your guard and you will know the legalized villany that supports this so-called Anglo-Saxon freedom. Politicians of all countries are in business on the same basis, exploitation of the gullible public.

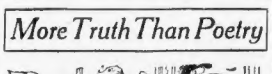
More Truth Than Poetry



The Ruling Fashion

By S. E. KISER

SIS went to work a while ago,
Because she's seventeen;
In nearly every movie show
She's in the ballroom scene.
She likes the job all right, I guess;
Gee, how she flaps around!
And nearly every day her dress
Gets farther from the ground.

WHEN pa came home the other night
And sis came dancin' in
He seemed astonished at the sight;
Her dress was short and thin.
"Good Lord! Put on some clothes," said pa,
"And do it mighty quick;
This scemore stuff has got so raw
It makes a person sick!

"YOUR mother's been away a week;
It's good she doesn't know!
I can't see how you have the cheek
To wear your waist so low.
I'm shocked; your mother will be, too,
When she comes home and sees;
Put on some things folks can't see through—
At least above your knees."

MA drove up in a taxi while
Pa still was scoldin' sis;
She stepped out, showin' legs and style
The neighbors couldn't miss.
Her stockin's were so thin you might
Have thought she had none on;
Pa took one look and yelled: "Good NIGHT!"
And then his mind was gone.

WHAT WAS IN BEGINNING INTERESTS SCIENCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHAT was at the beginning of things? What preceded the nebula and set it spinning and whirling into reels and rings and balls? What stirred the primal electricity and eddied it into electrons, and taught the electrons to marry into atoms, and inspired the atoms with desire to combine into molecules, and out of the molecules made the matter of the nebulae, and from that the suns, worlds, comets, meteors, together with all the glory of growing, swimming, walking, running, flying, thinking, talking, loving, hating, life? Nay, what was before the universal electricity itself, and made even it?

Every little while I get a letter expressing the misgivings of some good man or woman who seems to be still buried in the mystery of the early Sunday school readings, and who feels that there is moral wrong in following the advances of science when they tend to upset old-established theological tenets about the method and manner of creation.

I would refer inquirers of this sort to such results as critical scholarship has attained in the case of the mistranslated statements of St. John about the beginning of all things. The object of that scholarship has not been to discredit anything that the Scriptures contain, but to discover the real meaning of their statements.

There is no more devout slave to absolute truth than the scientific investigator. He will throw his own dearest and most hardly achieved results overboard if he finds them erroneous. He has no object whatever except to know the exact truth as it really is. If he is accused of error in seeking the truth solely along the lines which reason opens to him he may reply to a theological objector: "What other method can you offer me? Your own authority avers that 'all things were made through Reason, and without Reason was not anything made that was made.'"

The Bible affirms that man was created in the image of God. Is there not, then, a special significance in the fact that man is the only inhabitant of the earth who is certainly endowed with the faculty of reasoning?

If any lower animals posseas this power it can only be a faint glimmering, a first suggestion; in man alone it becomes truly God-like. But if the universe was made through reason, then something of reason must exist in all parts of it. In a more developed state we may recognize that the moral law itself is a higher form of reason, nearer to its perfection in God.

Stars and Stripes

Think of poor Mr. Harding's agonized suspense until he is officially notified July 15!

Among those who are thoroughly satisfied with the nomination is the man who runs the depot restaurant at Marion, Ohio.

Sugar smuggling from Canada is under investigation in Maine. Perhaps it will make clear why sugar is so much cheaper north of the line.

We shall hear several times during the Summer that capital and labor are engaged in a war to the death.

The Democratic papers tell us Harding is the weakest man the Republicans could have nominated. The Republican papers assure us that he is a good, strong man, who will unite all factions of the party and be an ideal President. If you haven't time to do any thinking for yourself, always read a partisan paper and get the opinion with which you wish to be consoled.

Now, if the Democrats nominate an Ohio man, why not make a complete job of it by moving the capital of the United States to Columbus?

FINANCIAL DISASTER MENACES BRITAIN

By Sir George Paish,

(Well Known British Economist)

LONDON, June 26.—A British budget which provides for an expenditure of nearly $6,000,000,000 with the prospect of indefinite continuance is likely to contribute powerfully to the financial and economic disaster which is now threatening Europe, including Great Britain, and which, unless steps are taken to avert it without further delay, will imperil the welfare of all the nations.

Great Britain has a duty to the world which no other nation possesses, for it has been mainly, indeed almost entirely, responsible for the growth of the credit system and the close dependence of nations upon each other for the prime necessaries of life. Now that the whole credit system is failing to pieces, not only does the British chancellor of the exchequer do nothing to strengthen it, but he is tacitly contributing to its collapse by tacitly assenting to a permanent expenditure beyond England's capacity to meet.

Cripples Helping Power

In introducing a budget which provides for so great an expenditure in a year of peace, he is crippling the power of Great Britain to render effective help to the nations in their need.

In future, approximately 30 per cent. of the income of the British people will be required to provide for their government's expenditure, against a pre-war proportion of a little over 8 per cent.

The continual absorption of labor and of income by these vast expenditures cannot fail most seriously to handicap and diminish the power of Great Britain to pay for the food and material which she and the other nations of Europe need to buy from abroad in order to maintain life and to restore their productive power.

The fact that the League of Nations has already issued invitations for a world financial conference, and in its invitation has definitely stated that "the world is at this moment in a condition of financial and economic disorder, with results that are at present so serious and may in future become so dangerous that the League of Nations cannot ignore them without failing in its most essential duties," has done more to raise hopes of the difficulties being overcome than any action that has yet been taken or any statement that has yet been made.

Indeed, no small part of the recovery in British exchange in recent weeks and of the relative steadiness of the franc and of the lira has come from the knowledge that the League of Nations, with the approval of the various powers, was to call a world financial conference at which the world crisis would be fully discussed and the facts of the situation frankly faced. One of the main reasons for the very small productions of Europe is the immense government expenditures, not only of England, but of France, Italy, Germany and, indeed, of practically all the great nations—expenditures not for production, but for consumption, which, indeed, diminish production and increase consumption.

Huge Expenses

The world's aggregate government expenditures at the present time are in thousands of millions of pounds, whereas previously they were in hundreds of millions.

In the current crop season most of the Continental nations are suffering seriously from failure, as their own productions are small and they have not the means of buying from other nations. With the present condition for the world's crops, the continued extravagance of governments and of peoples upon non-essentials and with still greater shortage of international credit in prospect, their sufferings will greatly increase, and consequently the forces making for far-reaching changes in the organization of society are likely to be more powerful than most people desire to contemplate.

Meantime, the new British taxes fall upon almost every one, directly or indirectly, and the effect of the budget must be a further appreciable percentage advance in the cost of living.
